Week-End Traffic Brings Second Fatality

MANSFIELD MAN STRANGLED AS CAR OVERTURNS

Earl Sweval Lone Victim of Crash Near Ashley Sunday Night.

STATE COUNTS 22 DEAD

Ten Hurt In Mansfield Area; Shelby Man Dies After Crash Near Bucyrus.

Two men, one of them a Mansfielder, were killed and 10 persons were injured in the Richland county area during the past 48 hours while the state today counted its heaviest week-end traffic toll in months. At least 22 Ohioans died as a result of automobile accidents.

Earl Sweval, 19 son of Mr. and Mrs Earl Sweval, sr. 425 Cline avenue, died when his automobile overturned north of Ashley last night.

He was found by passing motorists in the wreckage of his vehicle. Sweval, according to those who found him, had caught his neck in the door of the car and strangled to death before help could reach him.

Also dead today, as a result of an accident six miles south of Bucyrus late Saturday afternoon, was Guy Garnhart, 60, of Shelby. Garnhart was killed instantly when the car he was driving struck a cement abutment.

According to Sweval's relatives, he had gone to Ashley with a party of friends to spend Sunday. Part of the party had gone to Delaware and Sweval was on his way there when the accident happened. He was alone in the car at the time.

Included in the party was Marion Baker, 612 Bowman street, to whom Sweval was to have been married this Saturday, friends said.

Funeral services for Mr. Sweval will be held at 1 p. m. Wednesday at the Wappner funeral home, with Rev Grover E. Swoyer of the First Lutheran church officiating. The body will be at the home of his parents until time of service.

Mr. Sweval is survived by his parents: two brothers, Russell Chew and Charles Sweval; five sisters, Mrs. Walter S. Taylor, Mrs. Theodore Hollinger, Misses Maxine, Naomi and Darline Sweval, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services for Mr. Garnhart will be held at his home. 252

Willkie Renews Debate Invitation; Roosevelt Starts Busy Two Weeks

G. O. P. Nominee In Wisconsin for Second Visit

By WALTER KIERMAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD THE WILLKIE TRAIN, enroute to Milwaukee — With another and more subtle challenge to President Roosevelt to debate the issues of the campaign spread on the record, Wendell Willkie headed today into Wisconsin for the second time in his campaign for the presidency.

Willkie first challenged the president to debate in his acceptance speech at Elwood, Indiana, and has several times repeated it. Today his challenge stood in different form—he offered to "share the platform" with the president at Baltimore on Oct. 30.

Both Willkie and President Roosevelt were tentatively scheduled for the same date in the Maryland city. The Willkie forces hired the city's largest hall and then it was announced that the president would not speak in Baltimore on that date.

The situation afforded the Republican presidential candidate an opportunity to repeat his challenge but to put it in the form of a courtesy extended to the president rather than a direct challenge.

It was the second invitation to explain the New Deal viewpoint which he had extended to the president in two days. Speaking in Minneapolis Willkie asked his opponent to explain how he could "claim to be a liberal reform leader while having the Frank Hague machine, the Flynn machine and the Kelly-Nash machine trying to steal elections in three major cities."

He has consistently attacked Hague, Flynn and the Kelly-Nash combination but it was the first time he had attempted to tie in the president so directly with the political leadership he refers to as "corrupt" and "buccaneers."

Willkie made a major speech in Madison, Wisconsin, on the return leg of his western trip but today he's spending the entire day in Wisconsin.

His first scheduled speech was a rear platform appearance at Wausau with other rear platform

DRAFT BOARDS AWAIT LOTTERY

Complete Assignment of Serial Numbers to Registration Cards Today.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The national draft lottery to determine which of the country's 17,000,000 conscription registrants will be called into the army first, will be held in Wishington on Tuesday, Oct. 29, it was officially announced today.

While they awaited details of the national draft lottery from Washington today, Richland county's three draft boards completed assigning serial numbers to the 9,396 young men who registered last Wednesday in the county.

From two to four stenographers were busy today at each of the county's draft board offices preparing lists of names and serial numbers of the registrants. Board representatives said they would be completed tonight or Tuesday morning and posted in the Memorial building, courthouse, and American Legion home.

Draft headquarters in Washington sent "trouble shooters" to each of the 48 states today to speed up work of local boards so the numbers will all be ready in time for the lottery.

Announcement of the lottery details were expected today from Washington, and it was be-

President on Way Back to Capital and Campaign

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt, a secretary said today, is not accepting Wendell L. Willkie's offer to share an auditorium with him in Baltimore Oct. 3.

Stephen Early, the president's press secretary, said that on that date Mr. Roosevelt probably would speak in Brooklyn.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON — (AP)— President Roosevelt headed back to the capital today to complete arrangements for cramming the bulk of his personal campaign for a third term into the next two weeks.

He had itineraries for train and automobile trips to plan and an address to draft before his appearance Wednesday night in Philadelphia's Convention hall.

There in the auditorium where the Democratic national convention approved his second nomination in 1936 he will deliver the first of five speeches in which he said he would tell the American people about a systematic and deliberate "program of falsification of fact by the opposition."

His address will climax a national Roosevelt Youth day during which rallies will be held in 3,740 counties in the United States. The Youth organizations will tune in on the president's speech over the NBC Red network from 9:15 p. m. to 10 p. m. (EST).

Tentative plans call for Mr. Roosevelt to dip into four or five states in which approximately a quarter of the electoral votes are concentrated, either to speak, to inspect additional national defense projects, or both.

The states are Pennsylvania, with 36 electoral votes, New York with 47, Ohio with 26, New Jersey with 16, and possibly Maryland with 8.

At his Hyde Park, N. Y., home over the week-end his guests included Canada's governor general, the Earl of Athlone and his wife and daughter.

Like Days of 1917 at Farewell to Guard

Wives, Friends Watch Khaki-Clad Men of Battery D Begin Long Trek To Mississippi Camp.

There were farewells like those of '17 and '18 at the Armory this morning as Mansfield's detachment of the National guard—Battery D, 134th field artillery—embarked on a 930-mile truck trip that will take the unit to Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., for a year of intensive military training.

Nearly 200 persons stood in the crisp morning air to see the "boys" off—among them, wives, sweethearts and mothers and former members of the company, who were discharged last week for failure to pass the rigid army physical examinations.

The group shouted their "goodbyes" as the khaki-clad guardsmen, bundled in overcoats, piled into trucks and headed for the southern camp where they will join the vanguard of guardsmen who arrived there yesterday.

At exactly 3 a. m. Capt. R. J. Nichols, battery commander, dropped his arm to give the "go" signal and the 12 trucks bearing the 63 enlisted men and five officers rumbled out U. S. route 42 towards Columbus.

The motor caravan is expected to pitch tents at Fort Knox, Ky., tonight. Tomorrow night members expect to stay in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and Wednesday night at Macon, Miss., arriving at Fort Shelby sometime Thursday.

Advance units pulled into the camp by train yesterday. A band led them to a huge clearing in the DeSota national forest where they pitched their tents, Associated Press dispatches said.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, former state highway director and commander of the 37th division which will train with the 38th division, said about 10,000 Ohioans would arrive at the camp by the end of this week.

Those arriving yesterday included the 37th division staff, a headquarters company, a military police detachment, the 112th medical regiment headquarters special troops, the 74th brigade headquarters and an advance detachment of the 166th infantry.

Units from Bucyrus left Thursday and are expected in camp today. The Ashland detachment entrained two hours before the Mansfield unit left.

British Planes Attack Berlin, Northern Italy

Tremendous Barrage Along French Coast Believed to Have Smashed New Invasion Attempt; Small Bombers Attack London.

BULLETIN

LONDON,— (INS) — German "Big Berthas" today again pounded the English coast in the Dover area. Several large shells screamed across the channel and landed around Dover, while sirens warned residents to take cover.

(By United Press)

LONDON—British bombing squadrons, in a suddenly intensified aerial offensive, bombed German and Italian targets over a 550-mile front between Berlin and industrial northern Italy during the night, it was announced today.

Military targets over Germany generally, and the invasion ports along the English channel, were bombed. Big British raiding fleets cruised over Berlin and the industrial triangle of northern Italy. Naval guns on the Kentish coast of England joined in a bombardment of German guns and concentration bases on the French side.

(Zurich and Berne, Switzerland, had two air raid alarms during the night and Geneva had one. The Swiss general staff, in a communique, charged that British planes had violated Swiss territory several times, flying over the Jura frontier southeastward, and said that Swiss anti-aircraft guns at several points fired on them. The Jura Alps are on the Swiss-French frontier.)

The raids, including the first attacks in several weeks on Italy proper, came after persistent reports that Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal, new chief of air staff, would at once order intensified offensive tactics on assuming his duties this week.

Reports by United Press reporters and other observers along the English southeast coast indicated that the Royal Air Force had made one of its biggest raids of the war on the invasion ports.

At dusk a series of tremendous bomb crashes told watchers along the Kent coast that British planes were bombing the invasion area. Every 10 to 12 minutes from then on for many hours there was a similar series of explosions, in evidence that the British planes were attacking in steady waves.

A possibility that Britain's Royal Air Force may have smashed another German invasion attempt last night was seen here.

British bombers unexpectedly gave the German bases on the French side of the English channel the worst pounding they have had since Sept. 16, when the first Nazi attempt to invade England was so successfully nipped in the bud.

A total of 15,000 bombs were dropped on the German coastal positions within 2½ hours. At one time, the British bombs

French Report Heavy Loss In Pyrenees District.

VICHY, France —(AP)— More than 100 persons were reported dead or missing today and officials estimated damage of a billion francs as a result of heavy rains and floods which forced thousands to flee their homes in French Catalonia.

Details of the week-end disaster became known in Vichy only today as telephonic communication with Perpignan, capital of the stricken region, was restored.

Prefectural authorities there estimated a hundred dead or missing in Pyrenees-Orientales department alone.

(In Spanish Catalonia, 182 persons have been officially reported missing or dead as a result of floods. Heavy rains continued to hamper the rescue work there.)

New York Lessens Onus of Traffic Law Convictions

NEW YORK —(INS)— Traffic violators, of intentions innocent and otherwise, got a deserved break today.

The word "convicted" heretofore has been stamped on the back of licenses of motorists found guilty of infringing the rules of the road. Henceforth, said Chief Magistrate Henry H. Curran, the stamp will be changed to "fined."

The magistrate observed that there was a harsh connotation to "convicted" which carried "the faint suggestion of horizontal stripes up the river."

BERLIN —(UP)— The official news agency said today that British planes last night dropped bombs of the heaviest calibre on Rotterdam, wounding five persons, and on the town of Monster, where six were killed. A three-year-old girl was killed in bombing of the town of Oilschot, the agency said.

Flier, 4 Others Die Trying To Catch Falling Man on Wing

(By United Press)

MARIANNA, Ark. — Pilot George Zorn, 27, was trying for a miracle when he attempted to pluck the falling body of his friend out of mid-air with an airplane.

It cost him his life. Four passengers also were killed as was Paul Nalewaja, 30, Zorn's friend.

Five hundred people were watching the air show Zorn and other members of the Ace Lillard sky writers troupe were giving at a local airport. Nalewaja had made four jumps and was ascending for the fifth.

Zorn was preparing to land a passenger ship carrying Paul Bowie, 29, of Brinkley, Ark.; Lawrence Demarke, 35, and J. M. Cooper, 68, both of Marianna and Joe Campbell, 42, of Forrest City, Ark.

Nalewaja had jumped. Zorn saw the snarled parachute flapping uselessly behind him. He threw his plane into a dive and attempted to fly under Nalewaja, evidently hoping he could pick him up on a wing.

Instead he misjudged the distance and the plane's wing struck Nalewaja without halting his fall.

By this time the ship was too low for Zorn to get out of his dive. It crashed 200 yards from the crowd and was buried so deeply in the soft earth that it required 30 minutes to recover the bodies.

Winter's preview will play a return engagement in the Mansfield area tonight and Tuesday, with cloudy and colder weather forecast by the weatherman.

The city shivered in freezing weather again today after the mercury dropped to a low of 26 degrees Sunday. It was 48 at noon today, but clouds hid the sun and made it seem much colder.

Average temperature for the city area during the past 24 hours was 36 degrees, 12 below normal. Warmer weather is expected to rout the fall "cold wave" by the middle of the week, since western cities reported readings close to 80 degrees today.

SQUAWK: Nazis Angry Over British Bombing of Berlin

(By United Press)

BERLIN—British bombs smashed into four sections of Berlin, damaging apartment houses, stores, hospitals, and residences, the Nazi press reported today in angrily threatening retaliation on Great Britain. The attack on the capital was part of a wide British bombing offensive.

The British were officially reported to have hit a railroad objective in western Germany and to have caused at least seven deaths in Holland, where the official news agency said Rotterdam and other towns were heavily bombed.

Berlin newspapers said several were killed and wounded in the raids on Berlin when two high explosive bombs hit a west end apartment house.

The injured in the apartment house were said to include three children.

In other parts of the city—chiefly the west and southwest—incendiaries and several unexploded bombs were reported. A number of apartment houses were evacuated because of the damage, the newspapers said.

(The west and southwest parts of Berlin contain many railroad objectives, but also include some of the best residential areas of the capital.)

Newspapers promised that German bombers would retaliate with heavy blows against Britain.

A formal communique, charging that the British were conducting a terror campaign against Berlin civilians, said that incendiary bombs had been dropped.

Nazi authorities, in a sharply intensified tightening of news control, announced that effective at once, no news of military nature, of any sort, might be sent from Germany between the hours of 11 p. m. and 6 a. m. daily (4 p. m. to 11 p. m. EST).

Protesting against the British raids on Berlin, the Nazis said at the same time that their planes had dropped 1,000,000 pounds of bombs on England yesterday and that their submarines had sunk 327,000 tons of British shipping in 48 hours.

PARLEY: Turkey and Russia Reported In Military Talks

BULLETIN

BUDAPEST—(INS)—Conclusion of a military alliance between Turkey and Greece designed to check any Axis drive in the Balkans was reported here today.

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Reports that Soviet Russian-Turkish military talks had been instituted and that Turkish military preparation was increasing along the strategic Dardanelles—gateway to the Near East—were heard today in the Balkans.

At the same time, Rumania inaugurated a blackout for Bucharest and the nearby oil fields.

Travelers from Turkey said in Athens that railway lines to Adrianople, a Turkish city in territory wedged between the Bulgarian and Greek borders, were jammed with troop trains, while a half a million Turkish troops were said to be already in the region of the Dardanelles.

A rumor that Soviet-Turkish military talks were under way in Adrianople was carried by the Budapest newspaper, Magyar Nemzet, while other unconfirmed reports said the Turks were building new fortifications and communications.

The Turkish press, predicting that the Axis would attempt its next push in the Near East, played up British maneuvers to counter such a drive.

News-Journal Page For Women

Modern Girl Must Be Independent

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Parents who've seen more of the ups-and-downs of life than their daughters are almost always in favor of giving the girls as much education as they can afford, knowing that it will enable the daughters to get better jobs if they know something more than the three R's.

Often the girls write me: "I don't want to finish high school. I'm only young once; why shouldn't I have a good time?" The trouble with this formula is that it's blown up, and women without educational equipment or some profession or trade have anything but a good time when confronted with the responsibilities of life.

More than a generation ago those splendid women who worked early and late to get the vote for women, to see that they were admitted to the professions and that working women worked under decent living conditions, announced that marriage no longer furnished economic security for their sex.

Today the majority of wives have to work. There is no getting around that, even if they work at home, cook, wash, iron, mend, even tend fires, take out the ashes, and try to earn a little extra money by taking in washing, mending or other work at home.

When the census was taken the time before last, there was a tremendous rumpus on the part of women who worked endlessly at household drudgery, when they were classed as having "no occupation" which they felt put them on a par with park bench sitters and other idlers.

As one of them protested: "Me—no occupation! I work fourteen hours a day. After my husband is snoring comfortably in bed, I'm still at it." At present the census lists women who work under their own roofs as "housewives."

You will probably remind me, if you're opposed to wives working for wages, that someone always has to do this kind of work. The answer to this is that housework grows easier for the housewife every year. Consider the work women did in Colonial days, when they had to dip the candles, weave cloth and linen from which they sewed the garments for the entire household. In addition to doing the family laundry in the old-fashioned way—hand-rubbing on a washboard—they did all the cooking, butter and cheese-making for the family, as there were no convenient chain stores at the corner.

Housework can never be the drudgery it was in the past. Year by year it grows simpler, and it's only the sensible thing for every girl in every walk of life to learn to do something which will help her to stand on her own feet, whether she marries or does not marry.

Stylist Showing Foundations at Mansfield Store

According to Miss Alyce Wade, New York corset stylist, milady's silhouette this fall and winter should be modified from the hour-glass lines of last year to a more straight-line figure with a controlled waist. Miss Wade is making a tour of the larger Ohio cities, and is at the J. C. Penney company store today and tomorrow demonstrating the results of correctly chosen and properly fitted foundation garments.

Miss Wade says that the newest material now being used in corsets is power net, which is a double strength lastex, soft and pliable, but with an iron-bound control. This lastex fabric is, in some instances, finished to resemble satin, so that even the satin garments feature panels of it for better figure control.

"More and more women," maintains Miss Wade, "are wearing foundation garments every year, because they realize they must with the present fashion trends for fitted midriff and princess-style gowns." She stated further that corsets are helpful from a health standpoint because of their support and thus are recmomended to all women by doctors.

Upped Hair-Do Demands Smooth Skins

By MME. QUI VIVE

Except for the girl who flaunts a fluff bang, seen only now and then, we are all highbrows. Strange that the upswept coiffure has prevailed for so long a time. The reason: it makes for the neatest kind of a hair arrangement. It is flattering to the eyes. It gives the face a freshly washed appearance even though make-up flourishes like a green bay tree.

It's hard on the woman whose beauty petals have fallen, but she goes for it just the same. It should inspire her to get busy with the massage cream and to start a 100-year-war on wrinkles that lurk upon the premises. If she can catch 'em young she will have a chance to efface them. If they dig in, forming trenches, she will have to bear with them or resort to plastic surgery, which is expensive and which should not be considered unless she can find a man of good standing in the medical profession to do the job.

Lines across the forehead are cause by the habit of lifting the eyebrows. Frowns are also self-inflicted.

To fight forehead lines provide yourself with a cream that is of such heav consistency that it will not permit the fingers to slip and slide when you apply it. You are going to feed the tissues and restore them to a normal state. Manipulations will start blood streams stepping; good circulation is necessary for firm smooth flesh.

Wash your face with warm soapy water, rinse with warm water. Never use cold water if you are going to use cream; the epidermal coat will have nothing to do with the fragrant cosmetic if the flesh is chilled.

Smooth on the emollient, starting at the collar bones, working upward, using flattened fingers, being careful not to push up the flesh in folds. When the entire surface is lubricated, give the flesh a brisk spanking, except around the eyes, where there should be a gentle tapping.

For frowns do a little circular movement with the first finger. Place the thumb at lower end of line, first finger at upper point.

Keep the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb, lifting the flesh out of the groove.

For gullies that traverse the forehead: place all four fingers of each hand in an up and down position in the center of the forehead. When one group of fingers goes upward the other slides down, and all the time both groups are moving across the forehead. This is an excellent and effective movement. Ten minutes of this treatment. Then resume the patting movement, after which you are to frisk an ice cube over your celestial countenance.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Leslie's voice held cruel gloating in it," Mr. Veritzen went on, "and I realized that his hatred of Noel must extend to me. And then, in crisp, simple language, damning in its detail, he told me two horrible things, first that I had hired him to make a murderous assault upon Noel, not wholly killing him, but damaging his facial appearance, and ruining the arm with which he plays the violin."

The horror in his face as he spoke banished from my mind every vestige of doubt that he was indeed ignorant of what Leslie had done. But I could not find words to phrase my belief, and I was glad when Lillian spoke quickly and effectively:

"But, remember, Phil, he didn't succeed in seriously hurting Noel. That's a comfort, surely. Now tell us the other thing he said you hired him to do."

The lines which shock and horror had etched in his face deepened perceptibly at her question.

"It was something even more horrible," he said, and an unmistakable shudder swept over him. "That fiend sat there as calmly as if he were reciting an arithmetic lesson, and told me I had hired him to inveigle Mary into so damning and convincing a situation that neither Noel nor any other man who revered good women would ever wish to marry her. He also told me that I had offered him a bonus if he could succeed in really accomplishing her moral ruin instead of merely compromising her."

He had reached the nadir of shame. We both saw that, as his leonine head, always held so proudly erect, bowed itself so that his eyes were hidden from us. And his voice, usually so resonant, was almost a whisper when he finished speaking.

Again it was Lillian who came to the rescue.

"And we're here to tell you that he didn't even get to first base on that second proposition," she said. "He gave Noel a nasty clout or two, but he didn't put even the tiniest dent in Mary's reputation, thanks to the best chaperon in the whole wide world."

She waved an airy hand at me, and the sad wraith of a smile touched Philip Veritzen's lips.

"I am infinitely grateful," he said, but he did not look at either of us, and Lillian, with a significant look at me, again urged him to revelation.

"What was the task he wanted you to perform in exchange for his silence?" she prodded gently.

His tortured eyes begged us for understanding of what he was about to say.

"He told me," he began slowly, "that I must maneuver a chance to stay inside this house for the next few days, and engineer an entrance for himself and his gang—he calls them his aides."

"He would," Lillian said, and because there was no reason for the remark, I knew that she must be purposely trying to make Philip's revelation a lengthy affair, with an opportunity for her to dissect it mentally as he went on.

"Did he give you any inkling of what he means to do if he does gain an entrance?" she asked.

"Yes, he did," Mr. Veritzen answered despondently. "He wants to secure possession of the Chief. He said that if he could get hold of the Chief, dead or alive, but preferably alive—he would pledge his word never to attempt to molest either Noel or Mary again."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, October 22.

THE AUGURIES for this day make for a lively and probably turbulent state of affairs, with the forecast of moderate success through the exercise of good judgment, executive ability, hard work and the support of those in fair financial standing. This effort at giving stability and expansion to the fortunes and putting ambitions on a second road to attainment should not be put in jeopardy by "flying off the handle" or other exhibitions of excess impetuosity or over drastic activities. Handle all writings with caution.

Those whose birthday it is should have their fortunes, ambitions and peace of mind in their own hands during the year, which may hold promise of increase, expansion, stability and fulfilled aspirations if such happy auspices are not imperiled by rash, impulsive, tempestuous and headlong behavior. Over-indulgence or violence of any nature may offset or undermine the efforts of elders, friends and those in prestige and financial power to assist in growth, advancement and security in possessions power and standing. Be cautious in handling all manner of writings.

A child born on this day should have many stable and sterling traits of character, with energy, initiative and power, which, however, may be nullified by impetuosity, indulgence or over-zealous enthusiasms or reckless activities.

Sleep Habits Important

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In my earnest appeals to make this column useful to my readers, nothing heartens me so much as the letters I receive which give evidence that something I wrote here, or something I wrote in personal answer to a letter from a reader, actually worked.

From a mother whose husband is a public school administrator with considerable responsibility, has come the following:

"My Dear Dr. Myers: Perhaps you will recall that I wrote you in the late summer of 1939, asking your help on some problems. I have meant write you long before and thank you for your assistance. I wanted to be sure that your suggestions were actually working, and now, after almost six months, I can enthusiastically say they are!

"My children are a girl, who will be six in June, and a boy, who will be two in May. They have both profited by your sound and practical advice to me, and I shall ever be grateful. I felt almost at the end of my rope when I wrote you, but everything has worked out in fine shape.

The Matter of Sleep.

"I was reading your article in last night's paper about the restless nervous child whose parents say 'requires less sleep than most children.' Both of my children are the nervous type, but thanks to you and your suggestions, they have excellent sleeping habits now, and have lost the peevishness that had accompanied their nervous energy before. The younger sleeps from twelve to thirteen hours at night, with a two hour nap in the daytime, and the older sleeps about eleven and a half or twelve hours at night. And the fact that they are both in bed by seven, leaving a quiet house and peaceful evening, has had a decided effect on the serenity of their mother. I shall always be thankful to you for your help at a time when I was in need of such sound advice.

"P. S. Your suggestion that the older child be granted privileges not given the younger has worked out very well. She has assumed her responsibilities and felt she has earned her privileges. It's a grand scheme.

Advice Easy to Give.

Obviously this letter is more of a compliment to the mother who wrote it than to me. Advice is relatively easy to give, even good advice. To carry it out and get desired results is what takes effort and will power. I know for I am a parent myself. Therefore, whether it's my advice in this column, or special advice I send you in reply to your letters, which you try to follow but fail, please don't be too hard on yourself; and maybe you will also not be very hard on me.

You may have a chart of desirable hours of sleep at various ages by writing me at 235 E. 45th St., New York City, enclosing a self-adressed, stamped envelope.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE SUICIDE SQUEEZE

Among the more unusual types of squeeze plays is that in which a player squeezes his own partner. Because this damages the side which makes the play, it has been called the "suicide" squeeze. Perhaps a better name for it is one which Sidney S. Lenz gave to it several years ago — "cannibal" squeeze, because one partner devours the other.

	♠ None ♥ 4 ♦ 6 ♣ 9 7
♠ None ♥ K J ♦ None ♣ 8 6	N. W. E. S.	♠ None ♥ None ♦ 9 ♣ K Q J
	♠ None ♥ 5 ♦ 8 ♣ A 10

The end-game position above was produced during South's efforts to make a contract of 3-No Trumps. Up to this stage the defenders had two tricks and South had taken seven. He needed two more, but had apparently only one winning card, the club top. A bit of card reading told him, however, about how the other cards were distributed, and he therefore figured out a possible way to get his winning trick by means of a suicide or cannibal squeeze.

With the lead in his own hand, South led the heart 5 to West. East was able to discard on this without any trouble, selecting the club J, which wrecked East. The latter could not discard his diamond 9 without setting up South's 8. So he picked the club Q, which was just as bad. South, discarding after him, could have thrown off the club 10 if East had discarded his diamond, but now he tossed away the diamond and had his two clubs left for the last two tricks.

West could have prevented the squeeze, after winning South's heart lead, by refusing to play his other heart. If he had led a club back, South could have taken that trick, but no others.

We once saw a hand which finished on the same principle as this except that South had the equivalent of the club ace-queen, with no chance to get into the dummy to lead for a winning finesse against East. So when he threw West in with the equivalent of the heart trick, that poor worthy had to take his choice between squeezing his partner or leading into the tenace.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ None ♥ J 8 7 6 5 4 2 ♦ K Q 9 8 6 5 ♣ None
♠ K 10 9 8 2 ♥ A Q ♦ A ♣ A 10 6 5 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ Q J ♥ K 9 3 ♦ None ♣ K Q J 9 8 7 4 2
	♠ A 7 6 5 4 3 ♥ 10 ♦ J 10 7 4 3 2 ♣ None

Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.

After South opens this deal with a semi-psychic 1-Diamond and West overcalls with a strength-showing 2-Spades, what is North's best move in order to befuddle his powerful vulnerable opponents?

AIR LINE MAKES OFFER OF THREE SCHOLARSHIPS

Two-Year Course Heads List Of Tuition-Free Courses In Noted Schools.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Here's something that will interest Mansfield district youths whose ambition is a career in aviation.

Three United Air Lines scholarships in the Boeing school of Aeronautics in Oakland, Calif., were announced today by Air Youth of America.

In making the announcement, Thomas H. Beck, president of Air Youth of America, said the organization was launching a national program of aviation scholarships "in recognition of the importance of the part played by the youth in the nation's aviation program."

The scholarships were presented to Air Youth of America by W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines. In addition, four other scholarships, two in the Casey Jones School of Aeronautics in Newark and two in the Spartan School of Aeronautics at Tulsa, Okla., also are being offered.

Awards will be made on the basis of promise of achievement shown by the candidates as demonstrated through their scholastic records in high school and through some worth while accomplishment in the field of junior aviation, such as model plane building, aviation radio or similar field.

To be eligible, applicants must be ready to be graduated from high school by June, 1941, or have been graduated within the past three years. Competition will close March 1, 1941. Applications may be obtained from the scholarship awards committee, Air Youth of America, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, or at the municipal airport.

The United Air Lines scholarships include a two year course in airline operations and engineering, tuition value $1,440; an eighteen month course in airline mechanics and operations, tuition value $1,080; and a one year course in airline mechanics, tuition value $720.

In addition, the airline will provide the winners with $50 a month for room and board if the awarding committee decides he will otherwise be unable to attend the school.

The U. S. army air corps passed up a chance to land a prospective pilot the past week because of strict army regulations.

Jim Wallace, 610 Park avenue west, one of "Bud" Harrington's most promising students, decided to give "Uncle Sam" a lift and motored to Fort Hayes, Columbus, to make application to the service.

Now Jim is a little lanky and towers six foot three. He had heard that air service regulations limited applicants to six foot one and three-quarters inches, but thought that he might be able to "shrug" his way in.

But the army boys caught Jim off balance. As he walked in the door at the recruiting station, an officer yelled: "Halt, stop right where you are."

Without further ado another officer backed up against him and the recruiting officer said, "Sorry, but your'e too tall." There was nothing left for Wallace to do but come back to Mansfield and continue his private flying and hope that at some future date the army will lift the regulation.

Five more Ashland college student fliers, part of the class of 15 enrolled in the CAA's pilot training program, got their wings over the week-end.

It brings to 11 the total number to be flight tested by Harrington for their private pilot's licenses. One having been "washed out" several weeks ago, there are three more to be tested, probably next week-end, Harrington said.

* * *

When the new class of CPT students begin their flight instructions at municipal airport about Nov. 1, it's likely that some of them will be taking lessons from a local boy who has made good in flying.

Charles Silsby, a graduate of the Harrington Air Service, took his written examination for a commercial rating the past week and will go to Cleveland some time within the next few days to pass his flight exam before examiners of the CAA.

If successful, Silsby expects to go to Columbus for instructors' training and then apply for an instructor's rating which will enable him to teach the rudiments of flying to prospective pilots.

Harrington says that if Silsby passes the exams successfully, he will be added to the airport staff to assist in training CPT students.

A DIFICULT PROBLEN

In these strenous days before general election it is with peculiar embarassment that we try to come to a desician in our choice of a candidat. After we have studied the many schudeles availabel and have answered uncounted questionaires, our ability to procede along any given line is likely to be questionable.

Each seperate competiter is sincerly seeking our recomendation, and our mental obstacles are only increased when we listen to the criticism of their well-meaning oponents.

The increasing number of beaurus and commisions that have been created by the present-day politicon has complecated the problem to a point where it is almost necesary to have a bookeeper to record legitmate statistics, and to instal extravagant aparatus similear to that of a superintendant of finansial and economical invesegation.

If we are to receive with credance all the so-called facts set fourth in the neumerous pamflets that are printed, it becomes increasingly aparent that the oficials in charge must have put a premium on unusally tall stories. Perhapes, if we were less suspicious of the personel of the competeng parties and could develope some ideas of our own undoubtedly, the right of suffrage would mean much more to the voting individul.

Father Held as Slayer of Young Daughter's Suitor

VICTIM FOUND DEAD ON FLOOR OF APARTMENT

Girl Insists Parent Fired In Self-Defense; Story of Other Witness Differs.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Joseph Salupo, 65, whose son, Sam, and a 17-year-old girl friend, were blasted to their deaths a year ago in a bomb explosion, was jailed today in the slaying of a former suitor of his daughter, Mela, 26.

Victim in the shooting was Alex Stowoff, 21, scrap metal dealer who had been keeping company with Miss Salupo for more than two years. He was shot to death last night by Mela's father after he broke into her east side apartment.

Detectives said several shots were fired at Stowoff by Salupo who stopped firing when the young woman shouted: "That's enough, dad!"

One of the bullets pierced Stowoff's head as he lay on the floor after being struck twice in the chest, police said.

The shooting climaxed a series of quarrels between Stowoff and Miss Salupo that began when she started having dates with other men. The young woman insisted her father shot in self-defense after Stowoff picked up a chair and advanced toward him.

Steve Bugany, 26, who was at the home during the shooting, told police however, that Salupo started shooting an instant after entering the apartment. He denied that Stowoff picked up a chair and threatened Salupo.

Sam Salupo and Dorothy Evans were killed when a bomb exploded in their car a year ago. Their murders have not been solved.

Up and Down THE STREET

H. H. Shaw, 305 Marion avenue, was telling friends today that as far as he was concerned he has seen his last football game this season. Last Saturday Shaw, accompanied by his wife Lucille, went to Columbus to see Minnesota and Ohio State tangle. After sitting in a cold rain all afternoon to see his alma mater take a shellacking, Shaw and his wife returned to his car to find that thieves had broken into it. The couple had a number of valuables, including quantities of clothing, stolen from the automobile. Shaw said yesterday that altogether the game cost him in the neighborhood of $50.

The football players who make up the second and third teams at Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson Junior high schools had their own ideas as to how the game at Stadium field Friday night should have ended. After the contest, which Simpson won 6 to 0, the boys accompanied Boy Scout troop No. 5 on an over-night hike to the John Hattery farm. After they arrived the argument between the boys from the two schools became so heated that they decided to continue the game. Well, neither team scored, but Glenn Pore, scout master, had a time getting the boys to stop and retire.

Scenes reminiscent of World war days were enacted at the Armory at 3 a. m. today as wives, sweethearts and mothers of Mansfield guardsmen gathered to see the soldiers off for Camp Shelby, Miss., where they will spend a year in intensive military training. One oldster was among the 200 persons who braved the chill autumn air to see the "boys" start their 930-mile truck trip. He told Capt. R. J. Nichols, battery commander, that he hadn't missed anything of the kind since '98 when he watched the recruits from the city leave for the Spanish-American war.

Lucas residents lost their battle today to keep their only physician, Dr. Paul J. Lee, a reserve officer in the army, on the job in the village. Although three petitions were circulated in the community to keep him at home, he was ordered today to report at Camp Shelby, Miss. When he leaves, Lucas will have no doctor nearer than Mansfield. Dr. Lee recently built a new home in Lucas and moved into it only two weeks ago.

OHIOAN, FEDERAL DRY CHIEF IN STORMY TWENTIES, DIES

HILLSBORO—Roy Asa Haynes, a stormy petrel of the early days of prohibition, died last night at his home at the age of 58.

Mr. Haynes, colorful, stout federal prohibition commissioner under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, was in charge of enforcement of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act. One of Harding's earliest supporters, he was appointed to the post in 1921 with the endorsement of the anti-saloon league and served until 1927.

He had been long prominent in anti-liquor campaigns and in church work and for many years was editor of the old Hillsboro Dispatch.

His work as commissioner, which brought him an honorary title of major, drew both praise and criticism. His supporters contended he was doing his best in the face of red tape, inefficiency, and interference, while his critics asserted that he was responsible for alleged failure to cope with bootlegging.

His activity in enforcement of the Volstead act drew a rebuke from President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, who urged respect for all laws and not merely for favorite laws.

In 1926, Herman I. Goldman, a prohibition official on trial on charges of liquor law violations, testified that he had paid $5,000 to a prohibition agent for a campaign to make Haynes governor of Ohio. Goldman, who was acquitted, said Harry M. Daugherty, the U. S. attorney general, was in the Haynes-for-governor movement.

Mr. Haynes succeeded John F. Kramer, Mansfield attorney, who was the first federal prohibition commissioner. Mr. Kramer served from 1917 to June of 1921.

Charges U. S. Defense 'Misrepresented'

JOHNSON REPLY TO LINDBERGH TALK ATTACKED

Congressman Criticizes Former Assistant War Secretary For 'Misinformation.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson was accused today by Rep. Ralph E. Church, (R., Ill.), of presenting "misinformation" to the public concerning the status of national defenses.

The charges were made by Church in a release issued by the publicity division of the Republican national committee. Church is a member of the house naval affairs committee.

He referred specifically to a speech made by Johnson last Wednesday in reply to one Monday by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

"I find it difficult to believe a former cabinet official could have offered so much information," Church said, "unless he used data prepared by some unknown person in the hope of covering up the extent of the administration's failure to build up our armed forces."

He asked whether the principle upon which the New Deal is continuing its election campaign was based on a statement in Mein Kampf in which Hitler warned against telling small lies because people are accustomed to telling them and quickly recognize them in others.

Church quoted Johnson as saying that "in 1933 we were weaker than Japan" in naval forces. He cited figures from Brassey's naval and shipping annual, as well as house naval affairs committee hearings, to show that on Nov. 1, 1933, this country had 1,038,660 tons of fighting ships compared to Japan's 756,242 tons.

He said the figures showed that this country then had 25 per cent more warplanes than Japan. Germany's forces then were so insignificant that they were not even listed, he said.

"I might further remind the American people," Church said, "that although in 1933 Roosevelt and Hitler simultaneously began their respective indeterminate tenures of office, Roosevelt at the outset reduced defense appropriations instead of increasing them as Johnson would now have you believe."

Transient's Family Located After He Dies at Crestline

CRESTLINE—Funeral services were held today at 8 a. m. for James Sullivan, 59, a transient, whose family had lost contact with him more than 16 years ago. He was admitted to the Crestline Emergency hospital here Wednesday, giving the address of his brother in Youngstown, who since Sullivan had last heard, had moved to Cleveland.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

Now I'm positive this is the biggest season the town has seen in a decade. Broadway Rose has a new hat! . . . The roller skating conga-line on the Rockefeller Rink is one of the wonderful intriguing sights that could only happen in Manhattan—skyscrapers, skates, and the primitive.

Well, I've been to the rodeo but I didn't see any cowboys who looked like Gary Cooper. I guess that's the trouble with the lone prairie . . .

I notice that Sonja Henie wears her heart, not on her sleeve, but on her head. At Toots Shor's the other evening before she left for the coast her blonde locks were topped by a big powder blue velvet heart—hat for you, fellows . . .

I love the autumn smell of burning leaves. Makes me hungry, and makes me think of football, and mink, and chrysanthemums, and snow to come . . .

Wonder what the reaction among customers would be if they knew that dancing Latin night spot owner was really not Latin at all, but Hungarian? Probably. So what?

* * *

Now and then you hear one of those stories that points out what a soft heart some of the bigger Broadwayites display in the clinches. When Bobby Byrne, the young up-and-coming bandleader, was stricken with appendicitis during his engagement at the Strand theater and rushed to the hospital, a dozen big name maestros—including Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa, Jan Savitt, Shep Fields and Charlie Barnett—volunteered to take Bobby's place in front of his band.

And not one of them got a cent for it—it was just a nice gesture to help a youngster who would have done the same for any of them . . .

Interesting to note the number of Army caps parked beside civilian fedoras in the Broadway check-rooms . . . I can't get used to the ballet not being in the Metropolitan Opera House. I miss all the boxes and the red plush and Larry Hart's comments in the bar.

* * *

The new Rainbow Room show convinces me that Jack Cole is one of the five greatest night club acts in current show business . . . I heard a wonderful new song, the other day—"Sombody Let Paris Be the Same," by Rudy Revil. Enough to make anyone who knew Paris weep, and it will probably make everyone who hoped to go to Paris sigh, too . . .

Very funny eating system Loretta Young worked out for herself a few days ago. She played a double-header at the Gripsholm—lunched there, then went to the hairdresser's, then came back to the Gripsholm for more smorgasbord. And she keeps her "figger" better than anybody.

One of the more colorful places in town, for me is the Ringside Bar, opposite Madison Square Garden, where the rodeo cowboys and cowgals congregate after the show. It may not be Lucius Beebe's dish, but it's like a slice of a Wild West flicker, and very fascinating rubber-necking . . .

* * *

I waste more time looking at puppies in pet store windows than at any other form of outdoor frittering . . . I love whimsical stories about pigeons . . . Noel Coward and Cole Porter must be getting wanderlust around now, it's such a long time since they've been able to go a-sail on a tramp steamer—and probably such a long time before they will again! . . .

My idea of the very ultimate in luxury is a "record book" to be played on your phonograph. Imagine lying in bed and letting somebody read you to sleep! . . .

Every now and then the current Broadway expressions get overworked to the point of complete ennui on the part of listeners. The most terrible trio at the moment consists of "How d'ya like that?" expressing indignation. "Are you kidding?" expressing utter disbelief, and "Do I know what I'm doing?" expressing lack of confidence on the part of the recipient of the question. All very dull now.

* * *

Spivy's Roof is getting to be less and less like a night club and more and more like a private party, what with the smallness of the room and the nightly presence of the world's champion table-hoppers . . .

I'd love to lit in on the board of directors meeting of some big corporation, just to see if the biggies insult each other and get furious the way they do in the movies . . .

I really like Charles Laughton in "They Knew What They Wanted." First time I've applauded his performance since "Mutiny on the Bounty." . . .

One of the really interesting Broadway characters is Manny Hart, Moss Hart's father. He writes songs in his spare time and loves to hang around backstage at shows where his other son, Bernard, is stage manager. He talks to all the chorus girls and keeps advising them to give up show business and get married!

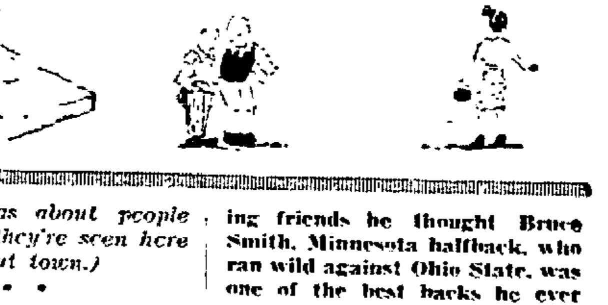
I think all this emphasis on vitamins is nonsense. when I have dinner I want steak, chops, or chicken, not mathematics and the alphabet.

* * *

Last week in this space I wondered if postmen felt silly when they took those proverbial walks on their days off. An obliging young reader, whose name also is Dorothy and who says she is going to be a writer when she grows up, has provided me with the answer.

"My father is a postman," she says, "and he likes to go walking. He goes at night, too, and plays baseball with my brothers even. He says if he rests his feet then he has time to think of how tired he is" . . .

Funniest thing in town to me is the "Lindy Hop contests" at Chin Lee's (a Chinese restaurant) and the "Oriental specialties" on the menus up in Harlem . . .



(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

* * *

John Dalton homeward bound after church. . . . Mrs. George P. Gernhardt and her two children having lunch in a suburban restaurant. . . . Art (O.S.R.) Glattke, packing his bags for a trip to the Warden's convention in Cincinnati. . . . John G. Routzon, C. of C. secretary in Boston attending a National Secretaries meeting. . .

* * *

Paul Eliot waiting to get in Tawses Drug store early Sunday afternoon. . . . Jim Georgeopulos supervising the redecorating of his restaurant, the Parkway Lunch. . . . Mrs. J. W. Graham, Mrs. R. D. Lindsay and Miss Ruth West motoring over to Akron today for a regional Congregational church conference.

* * *

Miss Ethel Wirts (Martin Hardware) boarding a bus on her way to work. . . . Mary Schiska and Gerry Young enjoying the late afternoon sunshine strolling down Glenwood boulevard . . . Dottie Landers and Jo Scheifley setting off for work at Sunglow after meeting for morning coffee.

* * *

Wayne E. Miller, Madison high principal, telling everyone about the new scoreboard recently erected at Madison's football field. . . . Frank Beeber telling friends he thought Bruce Smith, Minnesota halfback, who ran wild against Ohio State, was one of the best backs he ever saw. . . . Harry Mehock claiming he has one of the best cross country teams he ever coached.

* * *

Former Mansfield high football coach Russ Murphy, who had been scouting the Ohio State team for the Cornell game, talking with C. H. Henkel on the O. S. U. field after most of the crowd had left, Saturday.

Cornell Faces Big Test With Ohio State Club

East's Leading Combine Entertains Buckeyes In One of Top-Notch Contests.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The 1940 college football season is about half over and for the first time it is possible to approach with some confidence the task of naming those sectional leaders still in line for national honors.

The list of undefeated and untied major teams still is imposing but barring form reversals in this week's program of major games it should take in all the candidates for the mythical national championship.

* * *

In this category are Boston college, Georgetown, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Fordham in the east. In the south are Tennessee, Mississippi and Clemson; Northwestern, Michigan and Minnesota, the "big three" of the Big Ten, and Notre Dame and Detroit in the middle west; Texas Aggies and Texas in the southwest and Stanford on the Pacific coast.

* * *

Since this week's games may have important bearings on the outcome of the national race as well as conference contests, here's how the situation shapes up:

Cornell and Pennsylvania, a pair looking better than ever in conquests of Syracuse 33-6 and Princeton 46-28, respectively, meet two of the Big Ten's biggest teams. Cornell plays Ohio State, the team that gave the Big Red its first big push toward national recognition a year ago. The Bucks, beaten twice, most recently 13-7 by Minnesota, will certainly be out for doubly sweet revenge. Penn tackles Michigan, which blanked Illinois 28-0 for its fourth straight win.

Boston college, after a 60-0 walkover against Idaho, faces St. Anselm; Georgetown, 46-4 winner over Virginia Tech Friday, meets New York university, 13-7 victim of Holy Cross; and Fordham, 24-12 conqueror of Pitt, meets St. Mary's which beat Loyola of Los Angeles 18-7 yesterday.

Other important games match Columbia, 19-13 winner over Georgia, and Syracuse; Princeton and Rutgers, which beat Marietta 53-0; Penn State, 34-0 winner over Lehigh, and Temple; Yale which recovered from its Penn beating to whip Dartmouth 13-7, and Navy, a 19-0 winner over Drake; Harvard, which tied Army 6-6, and Dartmouth, and Colgate, beaten 13-0 by Duke in its 50th anniversary game, against Mississippi college.

Minnesota's triumph over Ohio State put the Gophers on a par with Michigan and Northwestern, which walloped Wisconsin 27-7, in the Big Ten race. Indiana, triumphant 10-6 over Iowa, meets Northwestern. Minnesota plays Iowa and Purdue faces Wisconsin this week. Notre Dame, which smothered Carnegie Tech 61-0, plays Illinois.

In the Big Six, Nebraska continued to look like the No. 1 team as it overwhelmed Kansas 53-2 but Missouri's Tigers also shone in a 30-14 triumph over Iowa State. They meet in a decisive game Saturday.

Some of Tennessee's supporters already looking for a Rose bowl invitation now that the Vols have beaten Alabama by a decisive 27-1, but Tennessee hasn't won the Southwestern conference crown yet. Florida, 19-0 winner over weak Maryland, is next in line. Mississippi still tops the standing. The Rebels, 14-6 winners over Duquesne, play Arkansas in another extra-circuit clash.

* * *

The Southwest conference race is between the 1939 champion Texas Aggies, who trimmed Texas Christian 2-7 Saturday, and Texas, 21-0 winner over Arkansas. The Aggies may find a tough customer in Baylor, 7-0 winner over Villanova.

Keeps Lead

Youngstown Halfback Injured, But Still Pacing Ohio Individual Scorers.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS— (AP) —Tony Aiello, Youngstown's flashy back, sat on the side lines as his mates ran up a 19 to 0 victory over Morris Harvey last week, but he stayed right on top in the Buckeye college football scoring list with 37 points. Injured a week ago, he may be out for several games.

* * *

Fenton Wolfe, Heidelberg's fine ball-toter, crept to within a point of the lead. Wolfe banged over a touchdown in the 13-0 win over Kenyon, which kept the Tiffin team at the peak of the Ohio conference.

* * *

Marty Vardaro of Youngstown slipped into third place with 31 points by kicking a point after touchdown against Morris Harvey. Mittiga of Kent State clung to the fourth spot with 30, although held scoreless by Findlay in the 13-0 Kent State triumph.

Here's how the scorers are making out:

Aiello of Youngstown, 37; Wolfe of Heidelberg, 36; Cardaro of Youngstown 31; Mittiga of Kent State, 30; Miesle of De Sales, 28; Mutryn of Xavier 25 and Nash of Toledo, 24.

The Eagles first score came early in the second period when Fred Hallabrin ran 40 yards for a touchdown. The try for extra point was blocked. They gained two more points in the same period when Seerman's bad pass from center went over Nevill's head for an Eagle safety.

* * *

In the third quarter Wise took a pass from center and ran 30 yards for the Eagles' second touchdown, without an opponent laying a hand on him. Bush plunged over center for the extra point.

* * *

Canton threatened in all three quarters but it was not until the fourth that they were able to score. Curry plunged over for the touchdown, and a pass from Garrison to Cochran was good for the extra point.

ARMY OFFICERS DIFFERING ON ARMORED UNITS

Wide Difference of Opinion Found Concerning Make-up Of Motorized Army.

(Editors' Note: This is the last of three articles on actual conditions in the U. S. army at the present time. They are based on actual observations made on a 10-day flying tour of army posts. The articles are written, not in criticism of the army, but to show what America is up against in its national defense program.)

By JACK VINCENT
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—Many veteran army officers claim today that the United States' military establishment is being built along the same lines as the British and French armies that lost the battle of Flanders.

These officers, watching the army training two armored divisions, one at Ft. Knox, Ky., and the other at Ft. Benning, Ga., are privately expressing fears that the armored divisions will become so unwieldly and bulky that they will be at a disadvantage in actual battle.

However, the army itself is well aware of the danger. Military attaches who have been stationed abroad with the German armies during the invasion of Poland and the low countries have been recalled by the army and sent to Ft. Knox and Ft. Benning to make a report on the U. S. armored divisions, particularly on how they would stack up against Nazi panzer divisions

Gen. George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff, also has regular staff officers in the field watching the development of the armored divisions.

One army officer who was an observer during the invasion of Poland and the low countries said that he would like to see the armored divisions composed entirely and only of tanks, leaving other equipment such as artillary and armored cars in the regular infantry. However, it was learned, that his suggestions are receiving wide opposition from some higher ranking officers.

Other officers claimed that armored cars to carry infantry and kitchen and supply trucks might bog down the armored division in battle. At present the kitchen and supply trucks move right along with the tanks.

And, they charged, one glaring deficiency in the present armored divisions is the lack of pontoon companies to throw up bridges for advancing tanks. The divisions have engineer companies but, according to one officer, there is a great shortage of pontoon equipment.

Many officers also decried the practice of carrying infantry troops in trucks and armored cars. They pointed out that infantry troops crowded into trucks would be unable to fight effectively from them. They said that the infantry should move up on foot to support tank attacks.

"Hell," one officer protested, "we are building everything France had and lost with."

It was generally believed that there would be some revamping of the armored divisions. It was pointed out that they still were experimental and could be changed easily.

Redskins and Bears Win to Hold Lead In Pro Grid Race

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears are headed for a spot in the playoff for the National professional football championship.

* * *

Sammy Baugh passed the Philadelphia Eagles silly, tossing three touchdown heaves as Washington won, 31 to 17. Baugh connected for 18 of 24 aerials for 258 yards.

* * *

The Bears, thwarted repeatedly in the first half of their battle with Brooklyn, broke loose in the final periods for a 16 to 7 victory.

Potsy Clark's rejuvenated Detroit Lions dropped Green Bay's defending champions back of the Bears with a resounding 23 to 14 victory.

The New York Giants downed Pittsburgh, 12 to 0. The Giants still have a chance to nip the Redskins should the leaders falter in the second half of the campaign.

Parker Hall regained his 1939 form Sunday and paced the Cleveland Rams to a 26 to 14 decision over the Chicago Cardinals. Hall accounted for the first two touchdowns on scoring heavies of 62 and 65 yards, and gave the Rams a lead they never relinquished. The five games drew a total of 111,665 spectators.

* * *

The Boston Bears shared first place in the American Pro Football league with the Columbus Bullies today on the strength of a 20-0 victory over Buffalo's Indians.

* * *

JUDGE PUFFLE

AH YES. ROBIN,—MRS. PUFFLE WILL REACT FAVORABLY NOW, TO YOUR VISIT WITH US, WHEN I TELL HER YOU WERE OUT ALL DAY ON A BIG BUSINESS DEAL!
YOU CAN TELL THE LITTLE WOMAN NOT TO TEAR UP THE TICKETS ON ME!—I'M A SLOW STARTER. BUT I FINISH IN THE MONEY!—I MADE SOME ENCOURAGING CONTACTS TODAY AND IT'LL TAKE ME ABOUT A WEEK TO CLOSE THE DEAL!—
IS THAT POT ROAST I SMELL?
HE PLAYS 'EM CLOSE TO THE VEST WHEN YOU ASK WHAT HIS BUSINESS IS!
HE TOLD ME IT WAS PUBLIC RELATIONS,—BUT SO FAR IT'S BEEN FAMILY!
JUST WHAT IS ROBIN'S RACKET?

LEADING ISSUES SHIFTING OVER NARROW RANGE

Stock Market Formless Today; Steels, Motors Lacking Support In Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market was formless today as leading issues shifted indifferently over an extremely narrow range.

Lacking much support were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, General Electric, duPont, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of N. J. and Pennsylvania.

Up occasionally were Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, Boeing, International Harvester, N. Y. Shipbuilding and Nash-Kelvinator.

Bonds lacked a definite trend. Commodities displayed mild improvement. Securities at London were comparatively steady.

Those searching for market clues studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that tightening of the hard metal supply was becoming increasingly apparent from week to week. Within steel-making companies, it was added, raw steel was being rationed among finishing departments on a scale not attained since the World war.

Forecasts for Detroit were that if output of new cars keeps up the current pace, October will witness total assemblies of around 514,000 vehicles, the biggest month since June, 1937.

SHELBY FIRE DEPARTMENT WILL MAKE SHARON TOWNSHIP RUNS

SHELBY—Shelby fire department will make runs into Sharon township until a fire protection contract can be agreed upon by city and township officials, it was learned today.

Fire Chief Eugene Schull has been instructed by Mayor W. H. Morris to answer calls into the township although the contract with Sharon township expired Oct. 15.

Efforts to have the trustees renew the contract have failed even with the city offering the trustees a reduced rate of $600 for a year's fire protection contract. The expired contract called for payment of $800 for the same length of time.

Trustees have claimed they had been charged an "excessive" rate in the past and feel they should get a much lower rate to make up for those "fat" years. They also pointed out that Jackson township only has to pay $400 a year unless more than four calls are answered.

The Jackson rate calls for that amount for the first four fires and $50 a fire over that number.

Mayor Morris is expected to report the reaction of the trustees on the contract at its regular semi-monthly council session at 7 p. m. tonight. The session is expected to be short because of the policemen's ball at the high school at 8 p. m.

Willkie enters the final two weeks of his campaign apparently as vigorous as he began it although others on his campaign train show signs of wear after the months long program of travel with speeches morning, afternoon and night.

Confident that his star is ascending day by day, the candidate reflects considerably more optimism than he did two weeks ago and as his optimism increases his willingness to take on a harder and harder program appears to increase with it.

Today to the itinerary slated to end at Louisville, Kentucky on Oct. 28, Willkie added Charleston, W. Va. on Oct. 29, Baltimore, Md., Oct. 30, and Camden, Oct. 31.

It is certain that every day of the next two weeks will be devoted to speaking right up until election day.

Demands Statement on Reported Release of Bomb Sight

SENATOR CALLS ON STIMSON TO ANSWER QUERY

Recurring Report Says U. S. Has Given Britain Use of Secret Device.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Holt (D) W. Va., today demanded that Secretary of War Stimson state publicly whether the United States has released the secret army bomb sight to Great Britain.

Aroused over recurring reports that the bomb sight has geen made available to the British military forces and that a number of Boeing "flying fortresses" will be shipped to England after the election, Holt took the senate floor to voice his demand.

Holt told the senate that the present agreement under which no important legislation will be enacted while congress is in a series of three-day recesses precluded the possibility of his introducing a resolution calling upon the secretary of war for this information.

"So I take this occasion," he said, "to ask the secretary of war publicly to answer two questions:

"1. Is it true that the government of Great Britain has been given access to our bomb sight?

"2. Is it true England has been promised our flying fortresses as soon as the election is over?"

Reports that the army was ready to allow Great Britain to obtain the bomb sight for use in raids on Berlin and strategic German industrial centers have circulated in congress for the past two weeks and aroused the ire of isolationists.

Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, replied "no comment" to inquiries addressed to the war department by newspapermen.

Rep. J. Buell Snyder (D) Pa., chairman of the house army appropriation subcommittee made an independent investigaton at the war department in an effort to determine the truth of the rumors.

"I will not quote any official but you can say for me that our super bomb sight has not and will not be released to any one," said Snyder.

Snyder admitted that the army and navy have several old type bomb sights which probably are not any better than those being used by the Germans and British. He expressed belief, however, that none of this type of equipment would be released for sale abroad.

SEES SABOTAGE

Dies Forecasts Attempt to Cripple Defense.

DETROIT —(P)— Rep. Martin Dies (D. Tex.), chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, declared in an interview here today that he had "reliable information that in a short time" acts of sabotage would be committed in defense industries in this area.

He said that he had definite knowledge that there were 5,000 potential saboteurs employed here, many of them in key industries.

He said he planned to catalogue each of the 5,000 individuals he described as "potential saboteurs" by name and occupation and endeavor to have them discharged from their jobs. "Employers say they cannot fire some of these saboteurs because of the national labor relations board. We may have to have a show down on that," he added.

REPORT FARLEY EXPECTS CLOSE RACE, DEM WIN

Ex-Party Chairman Refuses to Make Public Prediction On Election, However.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Former Postmaster General James A. Farley was represented by friends today as believing the Nov. 5 presidential election would be the closest in years and that President Roosevelt probably would win by a slim margin.

The master-manager of the 1932 and 1936 campaigns believes 1,000,000 votes in big, battleground states are likely to make the difference between the winner and loser.

Farley hit the 1936 election bullseye with a prediction that Mr. Roosevelt would lose only Maine and Vermont. But that was strictly a beef-steak dinner and party headquarters pool estimate.

Farley's private judgment expressed on the day he chose Maine and Vermont in the Biltmore hotel pool was that Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate, would get a few more states than that.

His political judgment is rated tops and New Deal campaigners are wishing Farley would come out in the open with a Roosevelt election prediction even though he rejects all bids to make a Roosevelt-Wallace speech.

But Farley will refuse to speak in this campaign. He still maintains his opposition to a third term candidacy. It is expected, however, that Farley's dislike of a third term will not persuade him to bolt this year and that h will vote the ticket straight, fro president down, on Nov. 5.

The best the New Deal ca hope from Farley in the way support will be some public a knowledgement that he will vot this year for the man whos spectacularly successful cam paigns he managed in 1932 an 1936.

YOU CAN GET A

LOAN OF $100

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Your loan promptly arranged in a brief, private interview

WOULD you like to get a cash loan without having to ask friends or relatives for a favor? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500—without endorsers or guarantors—if you can make small monthly payments on your loan. We require no stocks or bonds. At Household Finance you borrow on your own signature: your friends are not asked to sign the papers with you.

Choose your own payment plan

See, in the table below, how you may repay your loan in convenient monthly installments which fit your own income. You may repay in small installments spread over 30 months. Or you may repay sooner to reduce the charges.

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in 12 months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for 30 months will also repay a $100 loan.

Same rate to everyone

Installments in the table cover everything. They include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300 and ½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Household has only this one rate—the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

No one else need know

When you borrow at Household, there is no need to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) So that your loan may remain your private affair, we do not ask friends or relatives about your credit. If you should be faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan, Household will show you every consideration. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

If a loan will help you, you are urged to look at the table again. Then phone or visit us for further information. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

CHAPTER XVII

Her father and grandmother were in the latter's room. Mrs. Fordyce was in bed, recovering from too many drinks. She explained that some fish she had eaten the day before had been poisoned.

"Have a lovely time, lovey?" she said to Norma. "Another time let your father know when you're going to Santa Barbara. You might have told them to let us know," she said to Jocelyn.

"What was the idea of driving down there so late, Miss Britton?" Philip asked, quiet and unsmiling.

"Those crazy boys weren't half sober," said the older woman. But indifferently, and snipping at her nails with a microscopic curved scissors as she spoke.

Norma gave Jocelyn a quick glance. "We were so hot, Dad," she said.

"I think I'd discourage that sort of idea another time, Miss Britton," Philip said coldly. "Well, those pills will be making you sleepy, Mother," he added, kissing his mother's hair when he got up to go. "Get a good rest."

He was going downstairs for a man's poker party a few minutes later when he met Norma and Jocelyn in the hall

"No more of those night runs, Norma," he said seriously. "I'm surprised that Miss Britton permitted it. And I don't like that Sears boy, or any of that lot! It was all right; I got your telegram when I got home here, before dinner, Miss Britton, and my mother knew only what I told her of it But I think a party is enough excitement for a sixteen-year-old, and I don't like night driving, especially by drunken boys"

* * *

Jocelyn said nothing Just how far to protect Norma, just what to admit and what not to admit puzzled her for a second, and in that second Philip had turned and started to descend the stairs, and Norma had given a triumphant caper and giggled in delight.

"He thinks you were with me all the time!" the girl had exulted. "Oh, what luck!"

"I don't know what he could do even if he didn't think that!" Jocelyn said, betrayed into ill temper. "It doesn't seem to me that what anyone says has much effect on you! I don't know what Miss Sanderson would have done in my place last night. Had you to sit in her lap all the time? Held your hand while you were dancing?"

"Poor Britty!" Norma crooned pityingly, still with her triumphant giggle.

"I think you let me down," Jocelyn told her.

"I never let anyone down!" It was Norma at her worst again, self-confident, arrogant, childish. "I don't see why they all make such a fuss about me," she went on complacently, as they reached her own room. "Loads of girls have money! Anyone can have money! It's only stupid dirty people who haven't got sense enough to work and save that are poor Miss Wykoff said so, in our political-economy class."

"I don't know or care who Miss Wykoff is," Jocelyn said warmly, "but that's not true. A great many fine and splendid men are poor, and their wives are working all day washing and sweeping and caring for children, and they never earn even enough to be comfortable—"

"Why, look at my grandfather, darling," Norma yawned. "He was the stupidest man that ever lived. I don't think he could do more than write his name! He had a little bicycle-tire shop fifty years ago, and what did he do? He loaned Jim Foresque three hundred dollars to start the Lockey car, and now look at them Miles of factories and sheds and a town called Foresque and thousands of employes who always give me a darling car when I go to the plant, and Lockey libraries and hospitals and memorial parks and I don't know what all! And a statue of my grandfather in blue jeans with an oil can. If you call that hard to do!'

"Ze poor dwess!" sid Mattress, displaying a ruin of striped gauze and gold and black ropes.

"Throw it away," said Norma. "I adored it, too," she said vexedly. "Damn everything!"

She sat down, drawing the telephone toward her.

"If you telephone people," said Jocelyn firmly. "I'd go very light on what you did last night. It's not at all to your credit It's not funny. Don't say more than that all of you and Miss Britton had breakfast at the hotel, and you and Peggy were so tired you rested all day and came home in your own car."

Norma, telephone in hand, looked a little dashed.

* * *

"I hate them all anyway," she said, as if in partial exoneration of herself.

"You'd hate them more if you'd gotten into deeper trouble."

"Ah, but you see I don't get into trouble!" Norma gave a confident laugh. Immediately her face clouded. "Dad'll know when he gets the bill for the plane," she said anxiously. "Did you tell them to send him the bill?"

"I did."

"Well, I'll telephone tomorrow morning and send someone over with the money." She eyed Jocelyn uneasily, as Jocelyn settled herself in a chair with a magazine. "You don't have to stay," she said sweetly but rudely. "I'm going right to bed."

"I think I'll see you into bed," Jocelyn said grimly. "And if your father really expects me to keep an eye on you," she added in her thoughts, "I think I'll have my bed moved in here."

* * *

After a moment of annoyance Norma began here telephoning. But what had evidently been intended for a long period of gossip and giggling about last night's party, turned out to be a rather flat failure. It was New Year's night, repentance and fatigue and satiety had set in everywhere; family parties and early good nights were the rule, and after a few attempts Norma gave it up, and somewhat disconsolately decided to go to bed.

Again Jocelyn went to her room exhausted But not to sleep She was reading, in bed, when Lena came softly tapping at her door.

"It's Miss Norma, Miss Britton. Mr. Fordyce asked me to call you."

Jocelyn sprang out of bed, reached for a dressing gown, groped with her feet for her slippers, and was flying after the maid within a minute of the alarm. She heard Norma's voice, screaming, sobbing, hysterical. It ceased for a second, and she could hear Philip's accents, stern and commanding

"Stop it, Norma! Stop it. Damn such fools as that Wilson girl, anyway!" And then more gently, "Ah, don't, dear. Quiet down, Spotty. Talk to Dad about it."

Jocelyn went in, her face colorless with terror. Norma was sitting up in bed; her father, on the edge of the bed, had his arm about her

"Come in, Miss Britton," Philip said quickly. "I'm glad you've come! See what you can do for this poor little girl here. That Wilson idiot has just telephoned —at eleven o'clock! It seems—it's too bad—terrible thing, but but those boys have had an accident coming back"

"What boys?" Jocelyn whispered, sitting down weakly.

"Pon and Larry!" Norma whispered back, beginning to heave with wild sobs again, "and Pon was killed! Peggy said so. Larry's been all smashed up and Pon's dead! Oo-o-o-o—he's dead! And we all had breakfast together, and it was my fault—" And Norma began to sob and twist again, writhing against her father's shoulder and trying to free her hands from his grip.

"You never should have gone down to Sanata Barbara," said Philip. "It was a mistake. But I can only thank God that you weren't with them. I congratualte you, Miss Britton," he added, with a glance for Jocelyn, "that you telephoned for the car. Otherwise—"

"Larry badly hurt?" Jocelyn asked

"They say so. They're bringing poor Sears home, but they've taken the other boy to a hospital in Watsonville. It's too bad. It's too bad. They slept all day, it seemed, and started back about six."

"Larry told them that I was with them, and Peggy too, and Peggy's mother fainted, and she said that she was going to put Peggy into a convent in Belgium,' Norma gibbered. "And Peggy said two reporters telephoned from Watsonville, and they said that Miss Britton flew down and got there before they did—"

"What's that?" Philip said sharply. "What are you talking about?"

"I suppose the papers will have the whole thing tomorrow, if Larry Bickford has been talking." Jocelyn said. "You see, the children went down to Santa Barbara without me," she explained, turning to Philip. "They got away from the dance and went down in Pon Sear's car. I didn't know it until they had gone. I'd seen Norma dancing with Charles van der Lipp—"

"Oh, if I'd only stayed there!" Norma moaned.

"You mean you weren't with them? You mean—Spotty, you didn't go down there alone with that lot?"

"We were just fooling" Norma murmured, tears beginning to run down her face again "The boys were kind of edged, and we all felt so hot, it was so hot in there! And so we said what fun it would be to go swimming at Santa Barbara—I'd never been there Dad" she interrupted herself with trembling lips. "And I wanted to see it .And so we sneaked off in Pon's car—oh, poor Pon! Poor Pon!"

"Go on, Spotty. You went off in his car."

"Yes, and Pon was plastered, so Larry wanted to drive, but he was sort of silly, too. And they went so horribly fast, and I was sick—"

Philip and Jocelyn exchanged glances; Jocelyn faintly shook her head. The thought of the little befuddled heiress being rushed over the dangerous long roads by a pair of irresponsible half-drunken boys had haunted her all day.

"How'd you get there?" Philip demanded, looking at her.

"I flew," Jocelyn answered simply.

"You flew?"

"I telephoned for a special plane."

"At what time was this?"

"About—around half past four."

"And you joined them there?"

"I got there before they did."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Down Argentine Way." Screenplay by Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg Directed by Irving Cummings. Principals: Betty Grable, Don Ameche, Charlotte Greenwood, Carmen Miranda, Leonid Kinsky, Henry Stephenson, J. Carroll Naish, Chrispin Martin.

* * * * *

First of the big "friendly neighbor" musicals aimed at that South American play, "Down Argentine Way," is a glittering piece of entertainment with lively people, lively music, beautiful color and considerable gusto.

The plot, if anybody cares, is the one about the boy who can't sell his prize horse to the girl because their pappies have an old feud. But nobody's too serious about it and if you must have a dash of originality, THIS horse is an Argentine horse, NOT bred in old Kaintuck or Maryland.

Ameche is the Argentine boy, Grable the American girl. Ameche comes to life, accent and all, and Grable, well, you ought to see the little gal now, tapping, singing, doing congas, and looking like a blond whirlwind. Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian torch, appears only as an entertainer. Unlike many entertainers, she entertains —with the same Portuguese songs, naughty eyes and whatnot that burned up Broadway. Lanky Miss Greenwood, still without imitators, takes care of plenty of comedy, along with Kinsky, Naish and various others.

I imagine South Americans will be most pleased with the breathtaking scenes of Buenos Aires if they're Chamber of Commerce-minded, but the hit tunes and continuous flood of hot rhythms ought to please everybody.

* * *

"Too Many Girls." Screenplay by John Twist. Directed by George Abbott. Principals: Lucille Ball, Richard Carlson, Ann Miller, Eddie Bracken, Frances Langford, Desi Arnaz, Hal LeRoy.

To apply the title of Deanna Durbin's song in "Spring Parade," it's foolish but it's fun. A zestful gang of youngsters in a mythical college of Pottawatomie (New Mexico) fight out the battles of gridiron and romance under the stage-minded eye of the producer who clicked with the same show on Broadway.

The four all-Americans hired as bodyguards for the wild heiress at old Pottawatomie make up the plot, but it's the nonsense of virtually everybody — and notably Eddie Bracken—plus the tunes and the hot and fast dancing that make "Too Many Girls" a happy hour.

All the people featured have plenty to do and they do it so well it's not enough. Newcomer Arnaz from Cuba charmed the ladies. "You're Nearer" is a new Rodgers-Hart tune (good) besides those from the stage show. Total effect, despite the frank stage musical technique, is tonic.

"Angels Over Broadway." Written, directed and produced by Ben Hecht. Principals: Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell, John Qualen, George Watts.

One of Hecht's tense little melodramas of city life, brilliantly and compactly told, splendidly acted and photographed, with Hechtian dialogue packing a steady punch.

A little man who wants to commit suicide because he stole $3,000 is saved by a trio of city denizens, oddly but convincingly thrown together by a rainy night. Perfect atmosphere, fine suspense, excellent characterizations—especially by Qualen as the absconder, and by Mitchell as the disheartened, bibulous playwright. Rita Hayworth now is an actress as well as a beauty and Fairbanks packs authority in his work as the con-man who turns softie

Motor note: Change a flat tire as soon as possible.

After extended observation Dorothy Dix concludes that marriage is a "fine institution but a poor reform school."

Up in Minnesota a political reporter has been appointed United States senator—giving him an opportunity to DO things instead of telling how they should be done.

Will Make 'Political' Speeches

DECISION by President Roosevelt to wind up the campaign with several admittedly political speeches is apparently justified by an obvious lack of unanimity on the part of voters in regard to the "indispensibility," which, alone, could have inspired him to accept a third term nomination.

After he had been "drafted" by the Chicago convention President Roosevelt indicated that the decision would be left entirely to voters and that campaigning burdens must rest wholly upon others as the critical international situation would make it impossible for him to leave Washington to do any campaigning.

One recent newspaper report, however, was to the effect that during the preceding 85 days Mr. Roosevelt had been absent from Washington 45 days, or more than half of the time.

Thus far in the campaign it has been quite evident that President Roosevelt has preferred to appear in the role of a self-sacrificing person who preferred retirement at the end of his second term, rather than as an aspirant for a precedent-breaking third term.

His "defense inspection" trips, at public expense, have met a need for personal contact with party workers in a number of doubtful states but have probably added little if anything to his knowledge of defense progress.

In avowedly political speeches, however, Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for third term, may be expected to discuss some of the real issues of the present campaign, not only the international situation but also such internal problems as mounting indebtedness, failure to relieve unemployment, explanation of his supreme court packing proposal, defense of the third term, and such other matters as may be of public interest and concern at this time.

Hearing what Mr. Roosevelt has to say as a candidate, ambitious to be accorded the unprecedented honor of election to the presidency for a third term, should be interesting—and also helpful to voters who are as yet "undecided."

Object Lesson for Dictators

THIS has been an unusual year for "signing up" in the United States. First there was the federal census last April. Then came state primaries, alien registration and selective conscription. And on Tuesday, November 5, will come the national election itself.

All these matters, in spite of some minor grumbling and resistance, have had the whole-hearted support of a free people. Every item on the list was something most people believed in and almost all were glad to carry out fully, according to instructions and law. Even the aliens have been signing up faster than was expected and their registration has passed the half-way mark, with two months of the four still ahead. Cheerfulness and efficiency marked the draft registration.

Nobody appears to feel regimented or personally abused by any of this. All have done their part without the prodding of a Gestapo or the fear of a concentration camp in their hearts. Our civil liberties remain intact.

Land of Infinite Variety

TRAVEL, which is usually thought of as just fun, has become an industry. And it is not only business but big business. Experts say that tourists in the United States will have spent more than $6,000,000,000 this year.

If you could follow those dollars into all the activities and places where they serve their thousands of purposes in pleasure, health, recreation, information and friendly association, you would have a wonderful picture of what a great nation does outside of working time.

You would find it the most typically American of all our activities, a nation going forth annually on a great pilgrimage "for to admire and for to see, for to behold this world so wide," and finding a world within our own borders.

This vast, intricate procession of travelers is one that never ends. Greatest naturally in the summer, it proceeds through all the other seasons. For, thanks to the size and variety of our country, there is never any limit to the places where the restless tourist can go and the things he can see and the new experiences he can have.

Defense Program Looks Ahead

ATTACK upon an American city from the air seems too remote a possibility to be seriously considered—yet Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, has presented a resolution calling for a national survey of air-raid shelter possibilities and the idea is being approved by governors and mayors of coastal and border states and cities.

Information has also leaked out that the war department is getting ready to issue a pamphlet on how to construct bomb shelters and air raid warning systems. A foreword will explain that this doesn't even hint of likelihood that any city will be attacked, being merely a part of the general defense program.

Experience of France and Great Britain in NOT being ready has apparently taught this country a lesson in the need of preparedness for the unexpected.

'Escapist' Trend In Styles

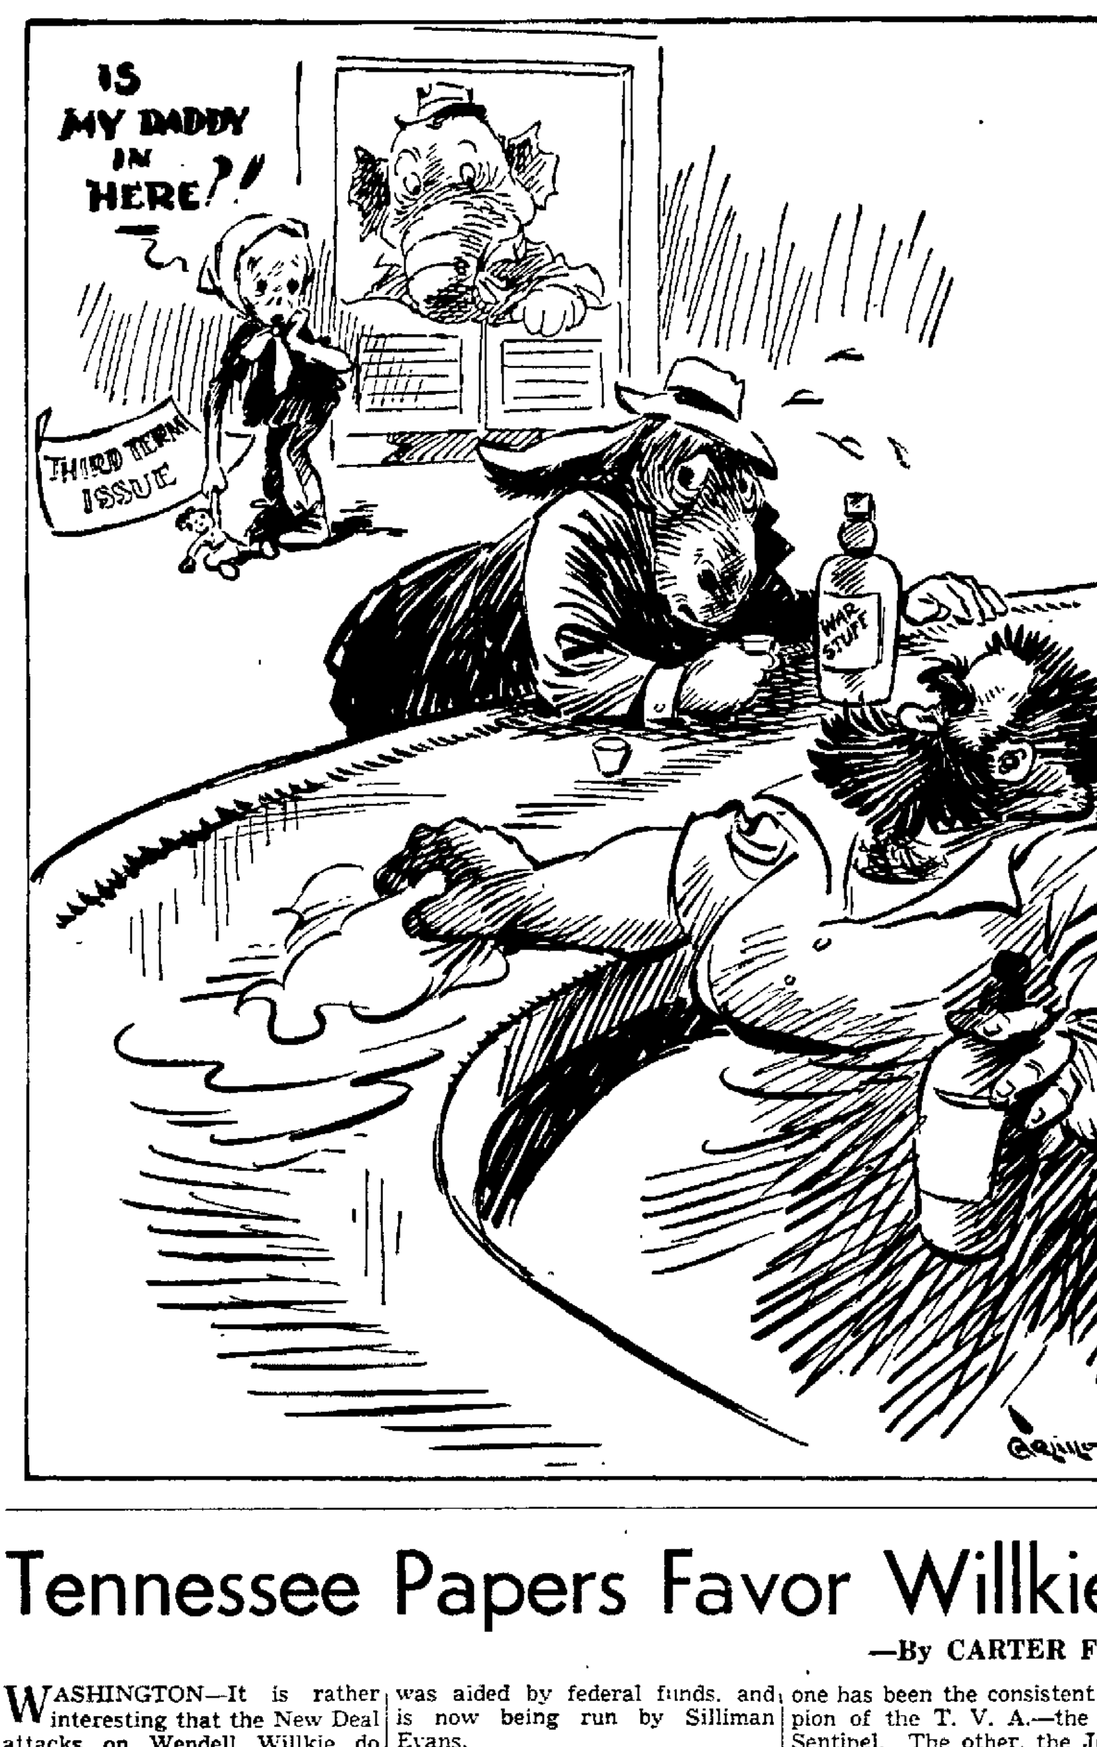
PSYCHOLOGY has penetrated the fashion salons. A leading department store in the East had its annual style show recently and announced "escapist" designs for its patrons. Distraction was created by Persian innovations.

The clothes displayed were "ornamented with gorgeous hats, muffs, jewels, turbans, tapestry, furs and colorful embroidery." They were in Persian colors, described as "Persian green, cerise red, citron yellow, plum purple, gold, white and black."

Hats, bags, the trimming of evening coats and capes used both Persian materials and designs.

It all sounds rich and lovely and certainly provides something different from the peasant type styles and the Spanish note of recent years. But as a means of escape from thoughts of war, it seems destined to early futility, with the Axis already pointing and marching to the southeast via the Balkans. There is oil in Persia, as well as beauty, and oil is the leading motif in Axis plans these days.

AVOIDING THE ISSUE



Tennessee Papers Favor Willkie

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—It is rather interesting that the New Deal attacks on Wendell Willkie do not go to the merits of government versus private ownership of the electric industry, but confine themselves almost exclusively to the fact that Willkie companies fought the T. V. A., and in particular that they used questionable means and methods in fighting a public ownership referendum in the city of Chattanooga, Tennessee.

It is also interesting that most of the people who ought to know about the details of these various fights do not seem to take these criticisms of Willkie very seriously.

In the state of Tennessee the eight outstanding newspapers, according to a recent survey by Time magazine, are:

Memphis Commercial Appeal.
Memphis Press Scimitar.
Chattanooga Times.
Chattanooga Free Press.
Knoxville News-Sentinel.
Knoxville Journal.
Nashville Banner.
Nashville Tennessean.

Of these eight newspapers, all but one, the Nashville Tennessean, are advocating the election of Willkie. It is interesting to note, also, that the Tennessean, the only one of the eight which is for Roosevelt, was in trouble recently, was aided by federal funds, and is now being run by Silliman Evans.

Evans is a fairly young newspaper man who came to Washington from the southwest shortly before the New Deal came into power. He was given a place as fourth assistant postmaster general under James A. Farley. Later, when the federal government began to have something to say about the operations of the Maryland Casualty Co., he was put in virtual charge of that Baltimore concern. Still later he became head of the Tennessean.

* * *

THE whole point of this is that all the outstanding newspapers in Tennessee, which by any stretch of the imagination could be said to be uncontrolled by the federal government, are for Willkie, although this is the state in which most of Willkie's spectacular opposition to T. V. A. and government operation centered.

The headquarters of T. V. A., have long been at Knoxville, Tennessee, despite the provision of law which required that they be at Muscle Shoals, Alabama. Of the two newspapers in Knoxville, one has been the consistent champion of the T. V. A.—the News-Sentinel. The other, the Journal, has always been a little critical of T. V. A. These stands were quite forcibly demonstrated during the hearings of the special congressional committee which "investigated" T. V. A. in 1938.

But both papers are advocating the election of Willkie!

* * *

EVEN more interesting is the position taken by L. J. Wilhoite, head of the municipal Electric Power board of Chattanooga. Mr. Wilhoite is one of the most fanatical advocates of government ownership of the electric industry in this country. He led the fight against Willkie's company during the famous referendum on public power in Chattanooga which the congressional committee investigated. He was, from the private utility standpoint, a venomous witness before that committee.

Just after the Philadelphia convention, Wilhoite remarked to friends: "If the Democrats renominate Roosevelt, I will have to vote for him. But if they nominate anybody else, I will vote for Willkie."

Neurasthenics "Born To Fatigue."

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE WAR will certainly create a great many cases of nerve shock, but perhaps, curiously enough, it will probably cure a good many chronic nervous invalids.

The layman can scarcely realize how much of his doctor's time is taken up with patients who are really, in the sense of organic disease, not sick at all. They consist of two classes, described by the late great physician Richard C. Cabot as:

(1) The mass of women who by the inertia of rest are thoughtlessly drifting anywhere.

(2) The mass of men who by the inertia of motion are recklessly rushing nowhere.

Work Only Cure.

Typical of many such human derelicts are those who suppose themselves to be suffering from "nerve fatigue." They must continually rest on account of that fatigue. They were born tired in nine cases out of ten, and the more they rest the more tired they get. Nothing but work will rest them. They are not fatigued: how could they be? They do not do anything. It is really internal friction that is wearing them out.

It is here in this class that the war may come as a savior. War and war work and preparations for war—these may be the focusing points that will give many "neurasthenics" a new interest in life, and in the work they do and in the determination to accomplish a definite objective they will find a way of life that entirely eliminates the friction that has been grinding them into nothingness.

Do not misunderstand me. I am certainly far from advocating war. I certainly do not think a war is worth the saving of our neurasthenics. But isn't it tragic that they cannot find something as completely absorbing as war, something in ordinary life that fills their mental and spiritual horizons sufficiently so that they could shake off their lethargy and go to work for it and become whole, complete and useful human beings?

Isn't it too bad that the medical profession cannot find that kind of an objective for them in ordinary life? Doctors are accustomed to say to these people "Don't worry—just stop thinking." But that would be just like sitting on the safety valve and inviting an explosion. Nothing checks thought except the substitution of another thought.

It can sometimes be laid at the door of medical advisers that they surround these people with the idea of disease—a pernicious idea. Who has not heard of the type of patient who, because he or she has a pain in the side and a little palpitation, lies awake, loses appetite, worries himself or herself sick, and drags around pestering friends and relatives and medical attendants with the thought of "heart disease?"

Such a person should not be smoothed down but speeded up and taught to live harder, faster, more intensely. Here I think the Christian Science church, although I do not subscribe at all to its theories, does a great deal of practical good.

Timely Editorial

They're Coming Back.

American Indians, at one time thought to be vanishing, are now discovered to be proportionately the most rapidly increasing racial element in our population.

The buffalo, too, was on its way out until Theodore Roosevelt took an interest in its destiny and did something about it. There were about 400 buffalo left in the whole United States in 1908. There are more than 17,000 now. The buffalo was probably saved from complete extinction by the establishment of the United States bison range in western Montana during T. R.'s second administration.

This goes to show what can be accomplished by common-sense conservation measures.—Detroit Free Press.

Civilian Heads Selective Service Despite Heavy Pressure By Army

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

INSIDE REASON for the long delay in the appointment of the selective service administrator was that the president insisted on a civilian for this post.

The army wanted one of its own men, and brought heavy pressure to bear, contending that the draft job was primarily a military one. Some army officers, apparently, have not yet become reconciled to the fact that the CCC is bossed by a civilian. But Roosevelt, giving heed to Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman and other labor advisers, stood by his guns.

Aiding the laborites was the attitude of army men toward labor in the preparations for the draft. For Colonel Lewis Hershey, acting administrator until the appointment of Clarence Dykstra, had failed to provide any labor representation on the appeal boards, even though the largest percentage of draftees comes from worker ranks.

This caused Hillman to hit the ceiling. When he went to bat with Hershey, the latter readily conceded the justice of the demand and changed the regulations. But the fact that Hershey hadn't thought of it in the first place was a weighty argument in favor of a civilian draft chief.

Ham Fish's House.

WHEN Representative Ham Fish was asked whether he rented his New York mansion to the Nazi consul general, he emitted a loud cry of anguish.

"If you want to make something of it," he bellowed, "I'll get you. I've got a right to rent a house to anybody I please."

"Is it true, Congressman," he was further asked, "that the Nazi consul gave you a big boost in rent, even though rents in that area have remained about stationary?"

"None of your business," the irate congressman replied, and proceeded to launch a string of vituperatives which would burn up the printed page.

The Fish mansion is at 55 East 77th street, New York, and according to state department records, is the home of Johannes Borchers, consul general of Germany, who has lived there five years.

The house was left to Ham Fish by his father, whose will was probated in 1893. New York City records show no change in ownership since that time. Fish is reported to have begun renting the house to Germans about 1931, shortly before Hitler. The lease expired two years later, about the time Hitler came into power, and he renewed, reportedly with an increased rent. Two years ago, 1938, he is reported to have renewed the lease once again, this time with a substantial increase from the Nazis.

* * *

Note—Ham Fish is one of the most violent isolationists, British baiters, and opponents of the draft on the floor of congress. He is the Republican congressman from President Roosevelt's own district, but is opposed by many leading Republicans.

Wallace's Autograph.

A STAMP COLLECTOR with an admiration for Henry Wallace conceived a novel way of getting Wallace's autograph. He found that there were postoffices in the United States for each of Wallace's three names—except for one missing letter. So he wrote to the postmasters of Henry, Virginia; Agar, South Dakota, and Wallace, California, asking them to cancel an enclosed cover.

Actually Wallace's middle name is Agard, not Agar, but there is no postoffice named Agard.

Then he sent the covers to Wallace, asking for his autograph. He got it.

Farmer McNary.

REPUBLICAN vice presidential nominee Charlie McNary was born on a farm in Oregon and still is a country boy at heart. So getting him to make a speech in a big city is like yanking molars. In fact, it took the combined cajolings of Wendell Willkie and Republican National Chairman Joseph Martin to induce McNary to appear at the GOP labor rally in Pittsburgh.

McNary made a big hit. But since then it has been touch-and-go every time Martin has approached him about talking to another metropolitan audience. The boyish-faced, 65-year-old Oregon senator finally brought the situation to a showdown the other day.

"Listen, Joe," he said flatly, "suppose you just let me talk to farmers. Every time I show up for a speech in a big town the Chamber of Commerce and business men take over the meeting. They want to be helpful, I know, but I feel like a stuffed shirt talking about the farm question in a setting like that.

"I'll make more votes for the ticket if I confine my campaigning to small communities and agricultural centers, where I can do some down-to-earth talking with farmers. I guess I'm just a hayseed, but that's the way nature stacked me up and there's not much we can do about it."

And the senator is still standing pat.

* * *

Political Chaff.

THE PRESIDENT is under strong pressure from Illinois Democratic chiefs to make a defense inspection trip through that state, with appearances in Chicago and other populous centers. . . . That unusual resolution adopted by house Republicans pledging "steadfast allegiance and continuing loyalty" to Wendell Willkie was the smart work of smart party leader Joe Martin. He put it through to nail reports that some GOP congressmen weren't mentioning the national ticket in their campaign speeches. Martin told his colleagues that Republican chances of capturing the house would be weakened unless the presidential ticket is elected.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The other day in the Great Hall of the Department of Justice building, 40 men were handed diplomas stating that they had successfully completed their work in the National Police academy.

The graduation exercises were run off with comparatively little fanfare. Had it not been that Secretary of the Navy Knox took the occasion to make there a speech of great significance, the commencement program probably would have gone unnoticed by the press. In the last five years, it has become a commonplace, for there are three such exercises a year.

In this period of national stress and international strain, of fifth column talk and rumors of sabotage, of the building of an army of a million men and a national defense undreamed of in peacetime, this passing of one more milestone in Chief G-Man J. Edgar Hoover's police school had a great deal more significance than it was accorded.

* * *

Twelve Weeks of Study.

THE NPA is run by the federal bureau of investigation and therein lies the story. The 40 men who were graduated the other day had just finished 12 weeks of concentrated study of what are considered by many the most efficient and modern police methods in the world.

The important thing is that something like 500 men, representing every state and several territorial possessions, have preceded them. Most of these men return each year for a brief but intensive study of the latest discoveries and new methods which are constantly being developed in the field of crime prevention and detection.

The primary purpose of the school is not to train policemen but to train men who can train policemen. In other words, these graduates of the NPA are teachers who go back to their own cities and states and there set up police schools modeled on the lines of the NPA here.

* * *

A Trained Reserve.

THAT is the primary purpose, but it is a secondary result that caused me to dip into the academy and find out what it's all about. And that result is that by means of the academy, the FBI has built up a reserve of more than 500 trained men, who, if the emergency arose, could be thrown into the breach as special or temporary agents.

Suppose tomorrow that the national defense program or the selective service program should suddenly need policing by a force far greater than the already strained personnel of the FBI could supply. G-Man Hoover would have them in a minute.

It's no elementary course in criminology that the NPA dishes up. The subjects covered are far too numerous to list, but they include such things as the development of latent fingerprints, laboratory work, training with submachine guns, how to make raids and arrests, how to conduct searches, jiu jitsu defense, how to block roads and bottle up escaping criminals, fifth column investigations, sabotage investigations, general crime prevention, the care and use of firearms—in fact, almost everything conceivable under the heading of police work.

* * *

Take Examinations.

THE MEN keep notebooks, take examinations, work out crime problems, attend lectures and motion pictures and dig in on reading assignments. Their instructors are from the staff of the FBI's own academy. There is no tuition, but transportation and expenses of the men have to be paid by their departments or civic groups.

The men have to be under 46 years old and full-time members of a state, county or city police force. Application for their attendance at the NPA must be made by the police force in which they work. Seventy-five per cent of the graduates either have had promotions or now are conducting schools in their own bailiwicks.

A Farmer's Diary

October Rain

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BEFORE the sun went down dark heavy clouds banked in the west. Only occasionally was there a hint of lighter streaks between the blackest layers. At twilight the moon, no more a perfect steel gray disk, rode through inky zones of cloud then shone bright and clear again. The wind grew stronger from the southwest, ripped persistently clinging leaves from reluctant branches, and scattered them far through the lowland meadows.

I felt the sultry dampness in the atmosphere. In another hour a grayish gloom had settled upon our valley and large drops of rain spattered in slow rhythmic drip at first upon our lowbuilt cottage roof. Then the tempo hastened, until an autumn torrent fell. Little streamlets with broadened heads ran from high parts of the lawn like zigzag moving serpents. Their surface glistened in the light that shone out through the window.

The heavy downpour ceased as suddenly as it began. When I stepped out upon the freshened grass I heard the air bubbles rising and bursting in great profusion. I saw and heard the water stream from the branches of the nearest maple and course down the trunk in a thin wide sheet.

At midnight the fickle showers changed to a steady rain. By slow approaching dawn, the rain had nearly ceased. I felt a clean freshness in the air that made my spirits rise. The dust and grime of many weeks had hung heavily near the thirsty soil. Now it was washed away.

When daylight came, I saw upon the surface of the gravel road limp layers of forest leaves pasted to the moistened earth. The hollows of the ditch were drifted even with the lawn. The wheat field to the east was a soft carpet of deeper green. The fragrance of everything was like a rare perfume that satisfied.

The earth seemed full of life again. I saw the lark rise from his grassy nest high into the air and sing his sweet early note. A robin chirped merrily among the leafless branches. I heard the sparrow's morning song as fresh and new as on an April morning.

BRITISH BOMBS FALL ON ENEMY ON LONG FRONT

RAF Planes Cover 500-Mile Range, Attack Berlin And Northern Italy.

were being rained down at the rate of 100 per minute.

The fact that weather conditions in the channel were perfect for an invasion attempt may have prompted the R. A. F.'s terrific assault.

Mist hung low over the strait of Dover all day. During the night it thickened, shrouding the calm sea that was stirred only slightly by a northeasterly breeze.

British long range guns started pounding the French coast first. For several hours, the British "heavies" poured tons of explosive steel across the channel. The intensity of the British bombardment prompted the German coastal batteries to reply and soon the channel coast trembled with the thunder of the big guns.

Soon after dark, the R. A. F. launched its attack. Scores of bombers, escorted by fighting planes, roared across the channel and started unloading tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs on the German positions.

The fierceness of the British aerial attack was such that observers on the English side of the channel felt sure it would have been impossible for the Germans to embark any large number of troops, if such was their intention.

Small Nazi Bombers Range Over England

LONDON—(AP)—Speedy single-engined German warplanes bucked through one of the heaviest daylight barrages of the war today and dumped bombs—one of which damaged the United States embassy—on London and other objectives.

The Nazi raiders apparently were using their fastest planes and coming over singly or by twos in an effort to escape the intense anti-aircraft fire along the Thames estuary.

The planes dodged through the clouds and maneuvered skillfully, but many of them were turned back by the ground guns and by British fighter planes.

Bombs were dropped on the capital, however, although crowds for the most part ignored the raiders and continued through the streets on their routine business. One explosive destroyed a house and damaged two others near the United States embassy, breaking windows at the embassy.

Shops reported, as the bombs crashed, that women had started their Christmas shopping and that business was brisk.

The raid alarm was not sounded until German planes had dropped some bombs on outlying areas.

Then the guns and British fighter planes went into action and the absence of bombing made it plain that the Germans had been driven back.

Mussolini in Area Bombed by British

ROME—(UP)— British airplanes bombed Northern Italy, where Premier Benito Mussolini is making an inspection tour, and Italian north and East Africa during the night, a high command communique disclosed today.

Seven persons were killed and 15 wounded in British raids on northern Italy, industrial heart of the country, a high command communique said.

Mussolini is now on an inspection tour in the north. Because of military secrecy surrounding his movements, it was not known where he spent the night after leaving the village of Ronchi Dei Vegionari for another part of the northern area.

Coming into Italy from Switzerland, according to the communique, the British planes dropped bombs on Verona, in the provinces of Pavia and Alexandria, and in the commune of Borgio Verezzi, near Savona, and other parts of the adjacent country side.

In raids on Italian Africa, British planes bombed Decamere, killing one person and wounding 11 and damaging a barracks, and bombed Asmara, Gura, Agordat and Massawa in Eritrea, the high command said.

Italian planes bombed military targets in Kenya, including the Wajir airfield and mechanized units on the Wajir-Gherilli road, and a British convoy, escorted by warships, in the Red sea, it was said.

Bombs Shatter U. S. Embassy Windows

LONDON — (AP) — Windows were smashed in the United States' big new embassy building on Grosvenor square in a recent Nazi air raid, but the red brick, white-trimmed colonial structure was not badly damaged.

No member of the staff was injured.

Permission was given today by British censors to tell about it.

But the two had plenty of opportunity for conversation of a social nature or about the weighty problems with which the war has confronted their countries.

Ohio To See Both Roosevelt, Willkie

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A visit by President Roosevelt and two by his G. O. P. opponent, Wendell L. Willkie, as well as numerous talks by state and national political figures remained in store for Ohioans today, two weeks before election.

The chief executive is to wind up his campaign with a speech in Clevelnad Nov. 2. Willkie will make his third campaign trip to the Buckeye state Thursday, when he visits Dayton, Akron and Warren. Oct. 29, Willkie will address a five-county rally at Jackson.

To offset Willkie's visit this week, Democratic campaign leaders arranged a speaking tour for U. S. Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi. Meetings have been scheduled for Sidney Thursday, Delaware and Westerville Friday and Waverly and Lancaster Saturday.

Two more Monday night radio talks and whirlwind visits to scattered sections of the state will keep Gov. John W. Bricker and his Democratic opponent, former Gov. Martin L. Davey, busy this week and next.

Suicide In South Believed to Be Missing Ohioan

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Dr. C. Grenes Cole, coroner, said today that a man who registered at a New Orleans hotel under the name of John H. Sieler, Columbus, O., but left an envelope signed "Homer B. Woods," committed suicide last night by drinking poison.

The envelope, the coroner said, bore this message: "Notify Dr. Ray G. Woods, state department of education, Columbus, Ohio. Report me dead. Do not open. Homer B. Woods."

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Homer B. Woods, 50, superintendent of schools at nearby Pickerington, disappeared last Tuesday after police questioned him in connection with the theft of a trumpet from a Columbus pawn shop.

HUNT MOTHER OF 'TOYLAND BABES'

Police Find Note, Asking Good Home For Abandoned Pair.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Two "babes in toyland" found shelter at the Chicago juvenile home today while authorities hunted their mother.

The tots, who said they are Dorothy and George Kupski, aged 9 and 5, respectively, were found in the toy section of a department store Saturday, playing happily. They gravely told a store watchman:

"Mother must be lost. She didn't come back for us."

Police said the children apparently had been abandoned. In Dorothy's purse was a note, stating:

"Anybody finding these children, please give them a good home. We have nothing to eat and no clothes. My husband left me a year ago."

Although the regulations were announced not long after a British news broadcast mentioned that Rumania's vital oil fields were within easy bombing reach of Greece—an ally of Britain, foreign observers regarded the blackout as more of a "disciplinary" measure, designed to impress the Rumanian populace with the alleged necessity of German military occupation, as claimed by the Nazis.

Reports that Anthony Eden, Britain's war secretary, might visit Ankara, Turkey's capital, gained ground despite a denial by the official Turkish radio.

Report New Axis Pressure On Bulgaria

LONDON — (INS) — Stories of heavy Italo-German pressure to force Bulgaria into the Rome-Berlin Axis camp were displayed prominently by London newspapers today.

It was emphasized that King Boris received Bernhard Rust and Julius Twardowski of the German foreign office, and that Bulgaria was reported crowded with Nazi "tourists."

The papers claimed that many buildings in Sofia and other Bulgarian cities are flying Nazi swastika emblems and that Germans in Bulgaria are making stronger demands that the nation line up with the Axis. It was hinted that Rust and Twardowski delivered a firmly worded request that Bulgaria co-operate with Rome and Berlin.

Taken before Probate Judge C. J. Anderson today, Harold Mast, 25, R. D. 5, Mansfield, pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors and was placed on probation under threat of a jail sentence.

Informally Speaking...

Oct. 21, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

IT HARDLY seems possible that just a week ago we were having warm summer-like weather, while this past week-end brought a snow storm with it. . . . Well, some folks say that after this cold spell we'll be having Indian summer, but I'm not going to hold out any fond hopes for fear of being disappointed—I'd rather be pleasantly surprised.

Pledge duties are undoubtedly keeping any number of Mansfield girls busy at school these days. . . Helen Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hartman, has been pledged to Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority down at William and Mary college in Williamsburg, Va., while Eleanor Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bond, is a pledge of Phi Mu sorority at the same school. . . . Then not so far from home is Marian Lee Birch, a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware. . . . The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Birch, she has pledged Chi Omega sorority there.

"DRAMA TIME" at Stephens college in Columbia, Mo. means professional radio time each Tuesday night to a number of Stephens radio students who take part in programs over the local station, KFRU, there each week . . . A newcomer to the microphone is someone I'm sure you know, Lucy . . . She's Lucille Garber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Garber of Ashland . . . A junior at the school, she is taking an active part in radio work this year, and was chosen for the cast of the first "Drama Time" program when "Forty-Ninth Street," a play by a former Stephens student, was presented.

And while we're speaking of news from neighboring towns, I mustn't forget to tell you about Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Monroe, jr. of Galion, who are spending their honeymoon at Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C. . . . They were honored Friday evening at a dinner party given at the Inn by Mrs. Merle Sproull, social director. The affair also complimented four other couples, also honeymooning at the Inn. . . The Monroes are planning to return to Galion about the middle of this week. The bride is the former Virginia Hocker.

THE morning mail brought me two postcards from the south . . . One was from Mrs. [illegible] Lantz who's down in St. Petersburg Fla. now . . . She drove her mother (who spent the summer months visiting here and in Canton with another daughter) home and plans to stay there for several weeks . . . Then Mrs. Arthur Knight sent a card from New Orleans, La., saying that she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Seemuth, are having a grand trip through Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and added that the Gulf of Mexico coast drive was beautiful . . . The Seemuths will spend the winter with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Conrade in Atlanta, Ga., while Mrs. Knight and her young son Peter (who's at the Conrades now) will return home within a couple weeks.

It seems that's about all the news today, Lucy, but I'll try to scout around and find some more for the next time I write. In the meantime, I'll be looking forward to a letter from you.

National Sorority Plans Convention In Mansfield

ALTHOUGH they have no chapter in this city, members of the Ohio chapters of Pi Omicron national sorority will have their annual convention here at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Saturday and Sunday. The sorority has a membership of over 200, with chapters in Ohio located at Akron, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Lima, Marion, Toledo and Youngstown.

Saturday's activities will include registration, an executive board meeting, a banquet and other entertainment, while a chapel service, business session, luncheon and installation of new officers have been scheduled for Sunday. Dr. Fay Le Meadows, pastor of the Shiloh Congregational church in Dayton, will be the guest speaker at the banquet, his subject being, "Let's Look at Life."

The sorority had its beginning in November, 1928, when a small group of women gathered at Detroit, Mich., to study self-improvement. They recognized that the human mind needs proper mental stimulation, and so engaged a competent director to assist them with a two-year lecture course in the field of liberal arts, and thus the first chapter of this organization, which in the short span of three years encompassed the entire United States, was formed. The first national convention was in 1931 at Chicago, Ill., and these sessions have been held every two years since then, with the one for 1941 scheduled for Chattanooga, Tenn.

A light flooded kitchen is now modern kitchen equipment. This considered almost as essential as convenience can be secured in either new construction or remodeling by installing a panel of Insulux blocks behind the work top or drainboard. This will admit plenty of softly-diffused daylight but will retard the passage of heat and sound. And it can be easily kept clean.
